IN DEDICATION

To the man we've learned to love, whose classroom discussions have pushed
our horizons beyond us,
whose inquisitive mind has ignited
the contagious spirit of curiosity within us, whose fatherly counsel and understanding has guided us through frustrations about us, whose dynamic living and convictions have given dimension to the faith sprouting within us;

To you, our teacher, our elder, our friend,
in gratitude for your inspiration, guidance, and help
as you explained to us the implications of Newsweek, the textbook, and the Bible;
as you walked among us
yet lived your own convictions leaving an unforgettable imprint on our lives;

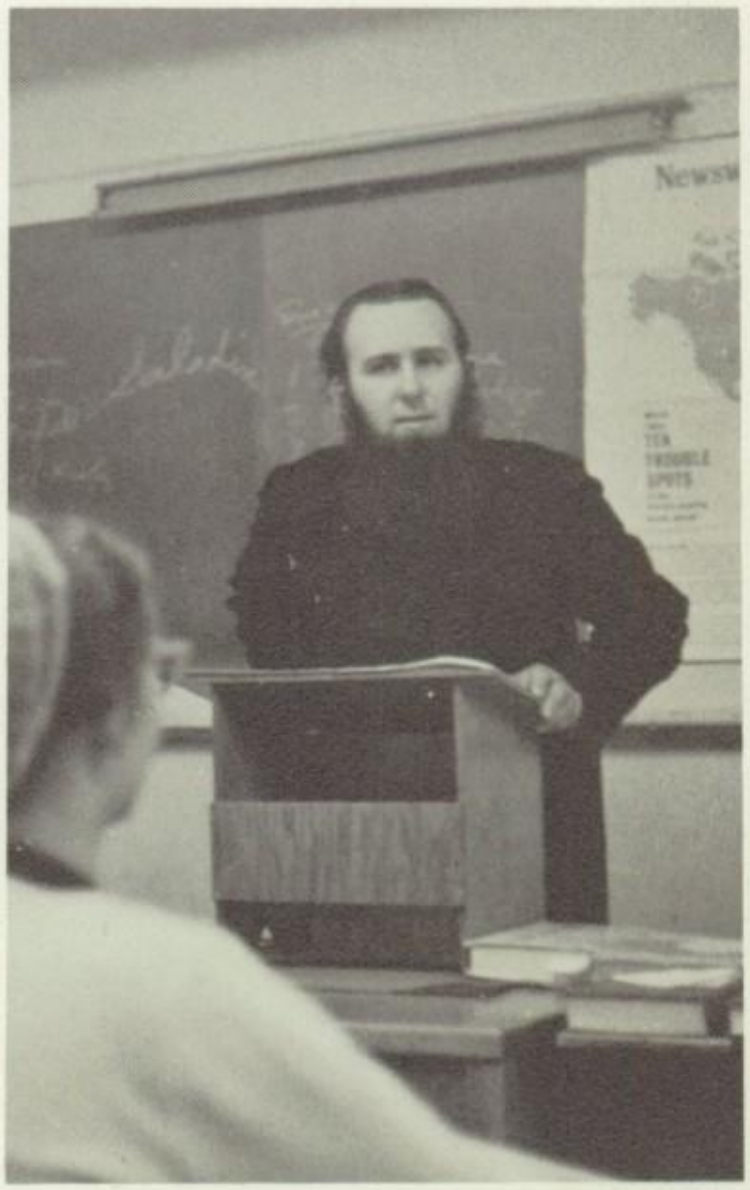
To you, Brother Myron S. Dietz, we dedicate these pages of the 1964 LAUREL WREATH in thankful appreciation for your sharing with us your individual exploration of life in Christ.

BROTHER DIETZ DISCUSSES the implications of the November 22 assassination with his World History class.



BROTHER DIETZ FINDS time to joke with students.

We come to L.M.S. from varied backgrounds and communities . . .

Echoes from the corridors of past years . . .
childhood impressions of right and wrong,
good and bad,
school day experiences of friendship,
development, accomplishment,
personal realizations of obligation,
influence, sacrifice;

Some live in rural areas.

Some live in urban.

. . . with different capacities and outlooks on life merging together to explore life individually.

. . . rebound in the hallways of aspiration growing in height, in knowledge, in love, learning to understand, to share, to forgive, working for acceptance, for revenue, for ambition.

Exploring Life Individually Through

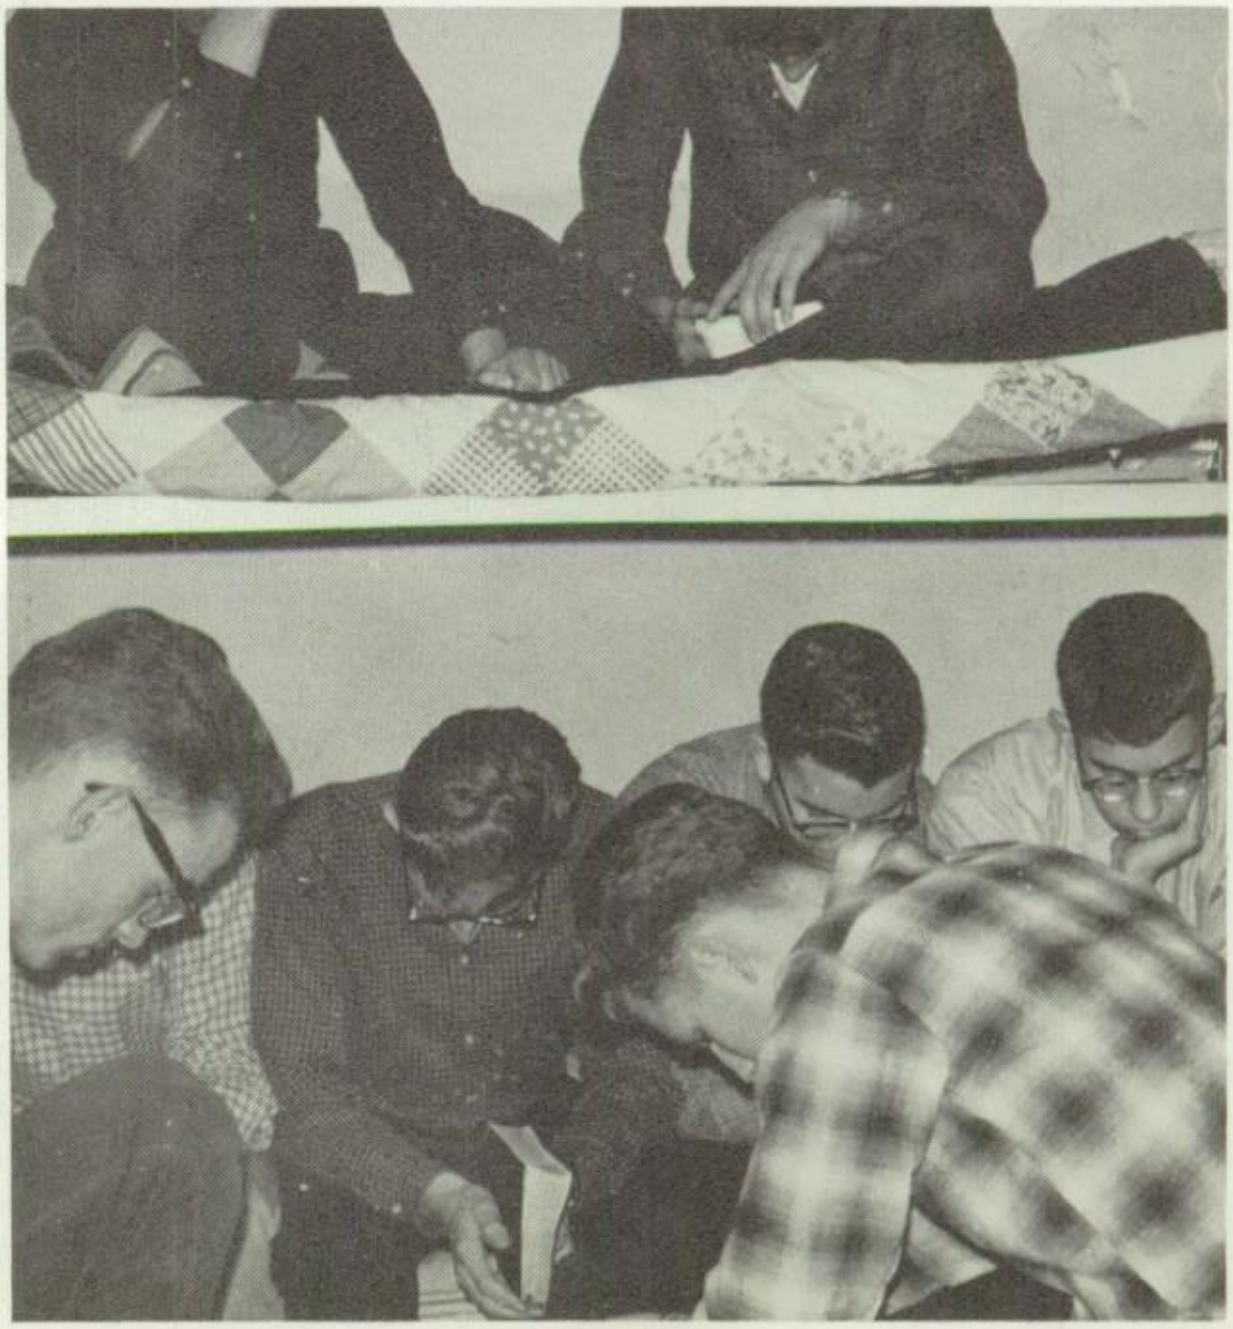
CONTEMPLATION

I find dimension as we share
Devotion's growth, conviction's prayer.
My God directs
As truth projects
Spark-beams; my altared heart reflects
Realities of faith.

JOHN HENRY KRAYBILL, our evangelist, in his last minute meditation as students enter chapel.

REVIVALS

We listened, we thought, we shared, we prayed. And God moved, conditioning for renewal, strengthening for growth, empowering for service.

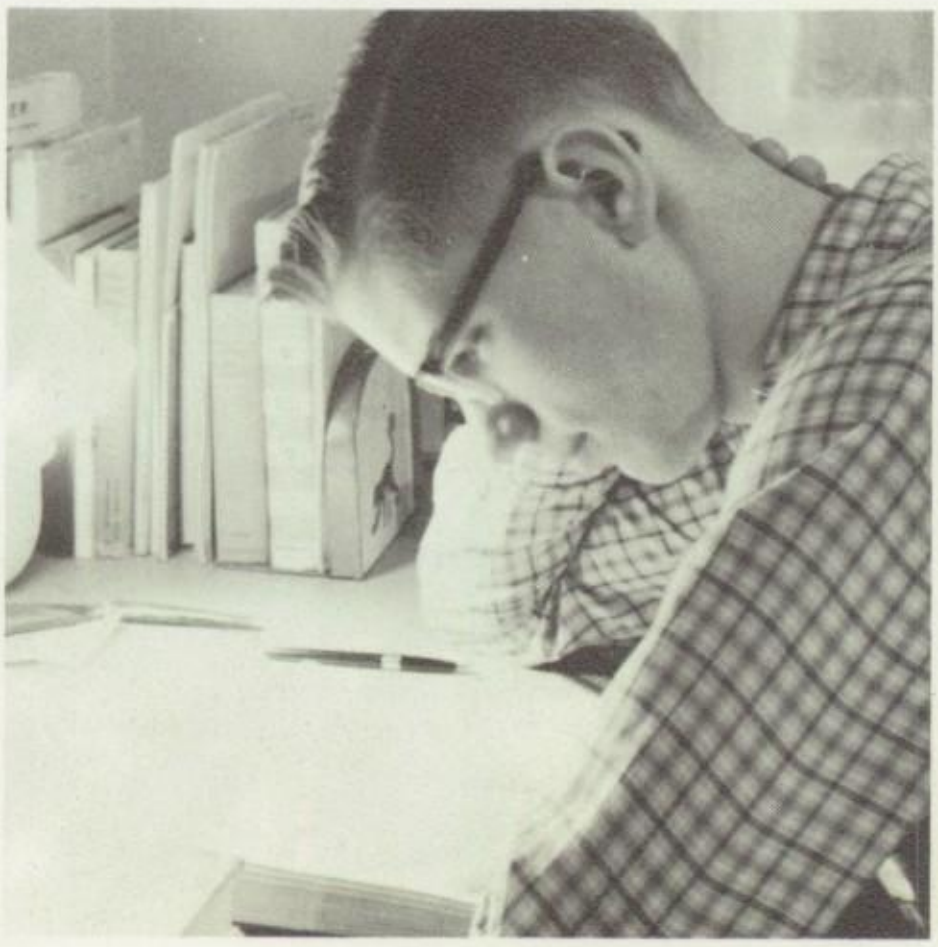


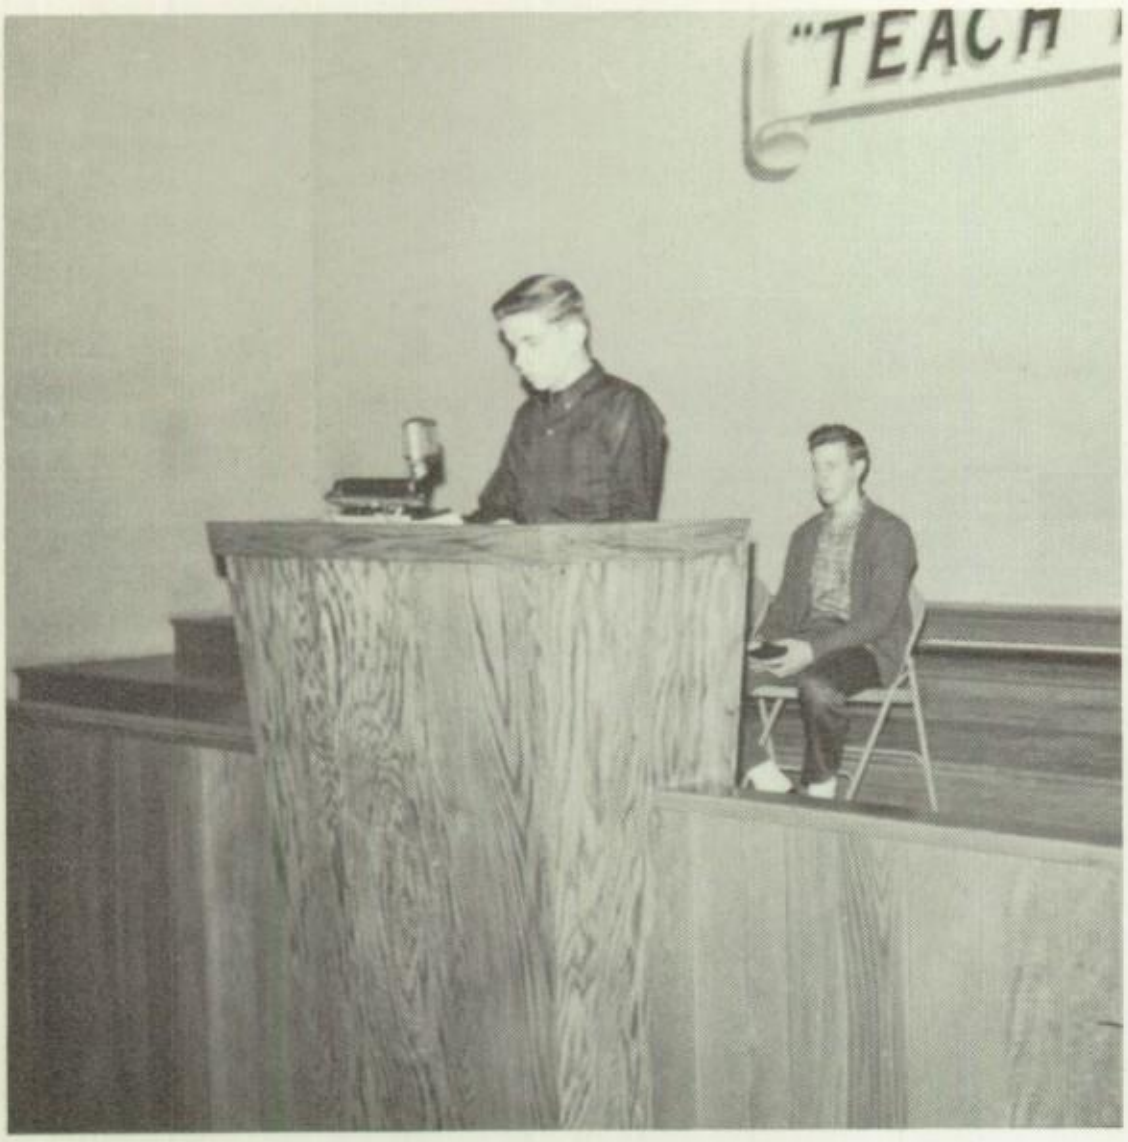
A DORM PRAYER CELL shares and prays together—a result of revival.

DAY PRAYER CIRCLES proved to be quite profitable when we really participated.

DORM STUDENTS PONDER as Don Kraybill shares a Christmas story in conjoint prayer circle.

JOE EXPERIENCES GROWTH through personal devotions.



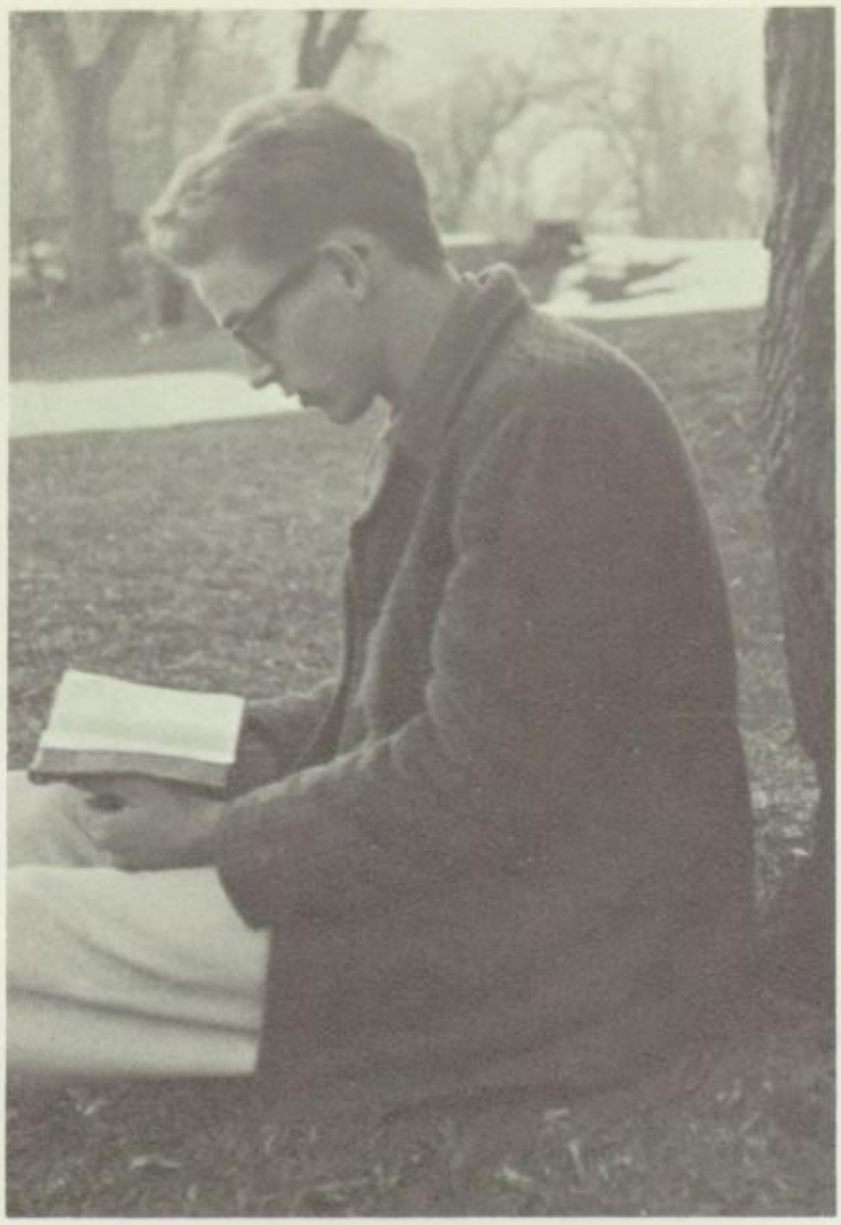


STUDENT RELIGIOUS

Students digged deep to find and share with their classmates and teachers their knowledge, convictions, and experiences of practical Christian living—some timidly, some emphatically.

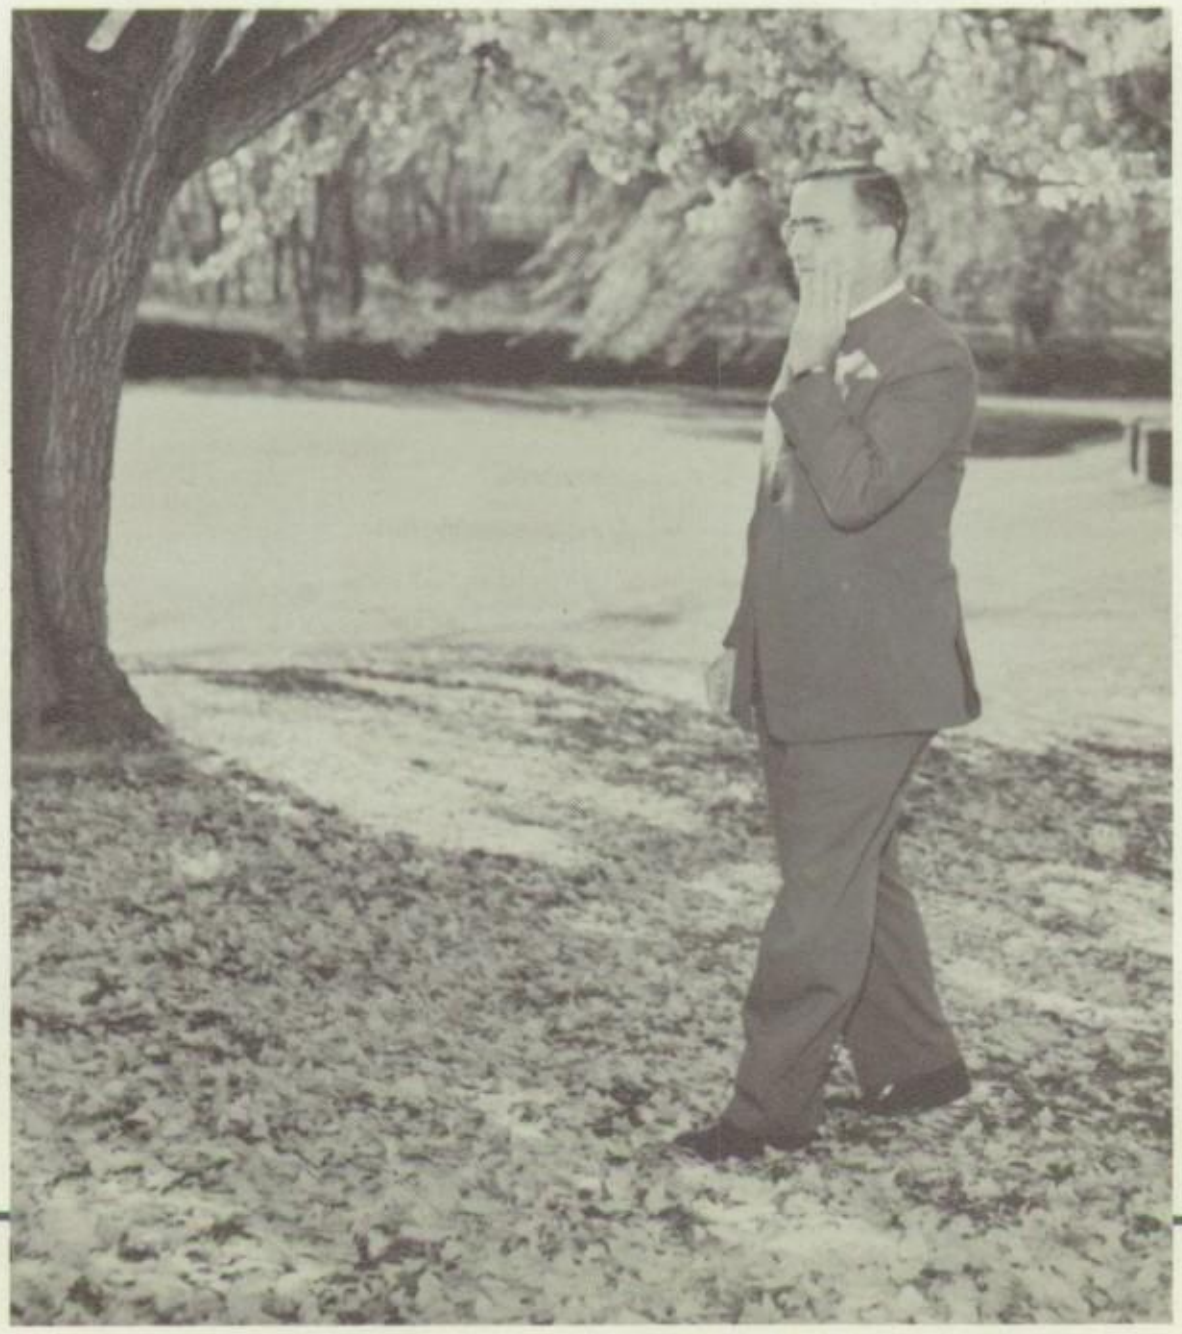
GLEN GOOD finds that student religious programs are an opportunity for oral expression.

RUTH ANN STOLTZFUS ENJOYS a pleasant chat with the Student Pastor in his office.



SAM MILLER contemplates in nature's setting.

SHARING TOGETHER in the great out-of-doors builds lasting friendships.

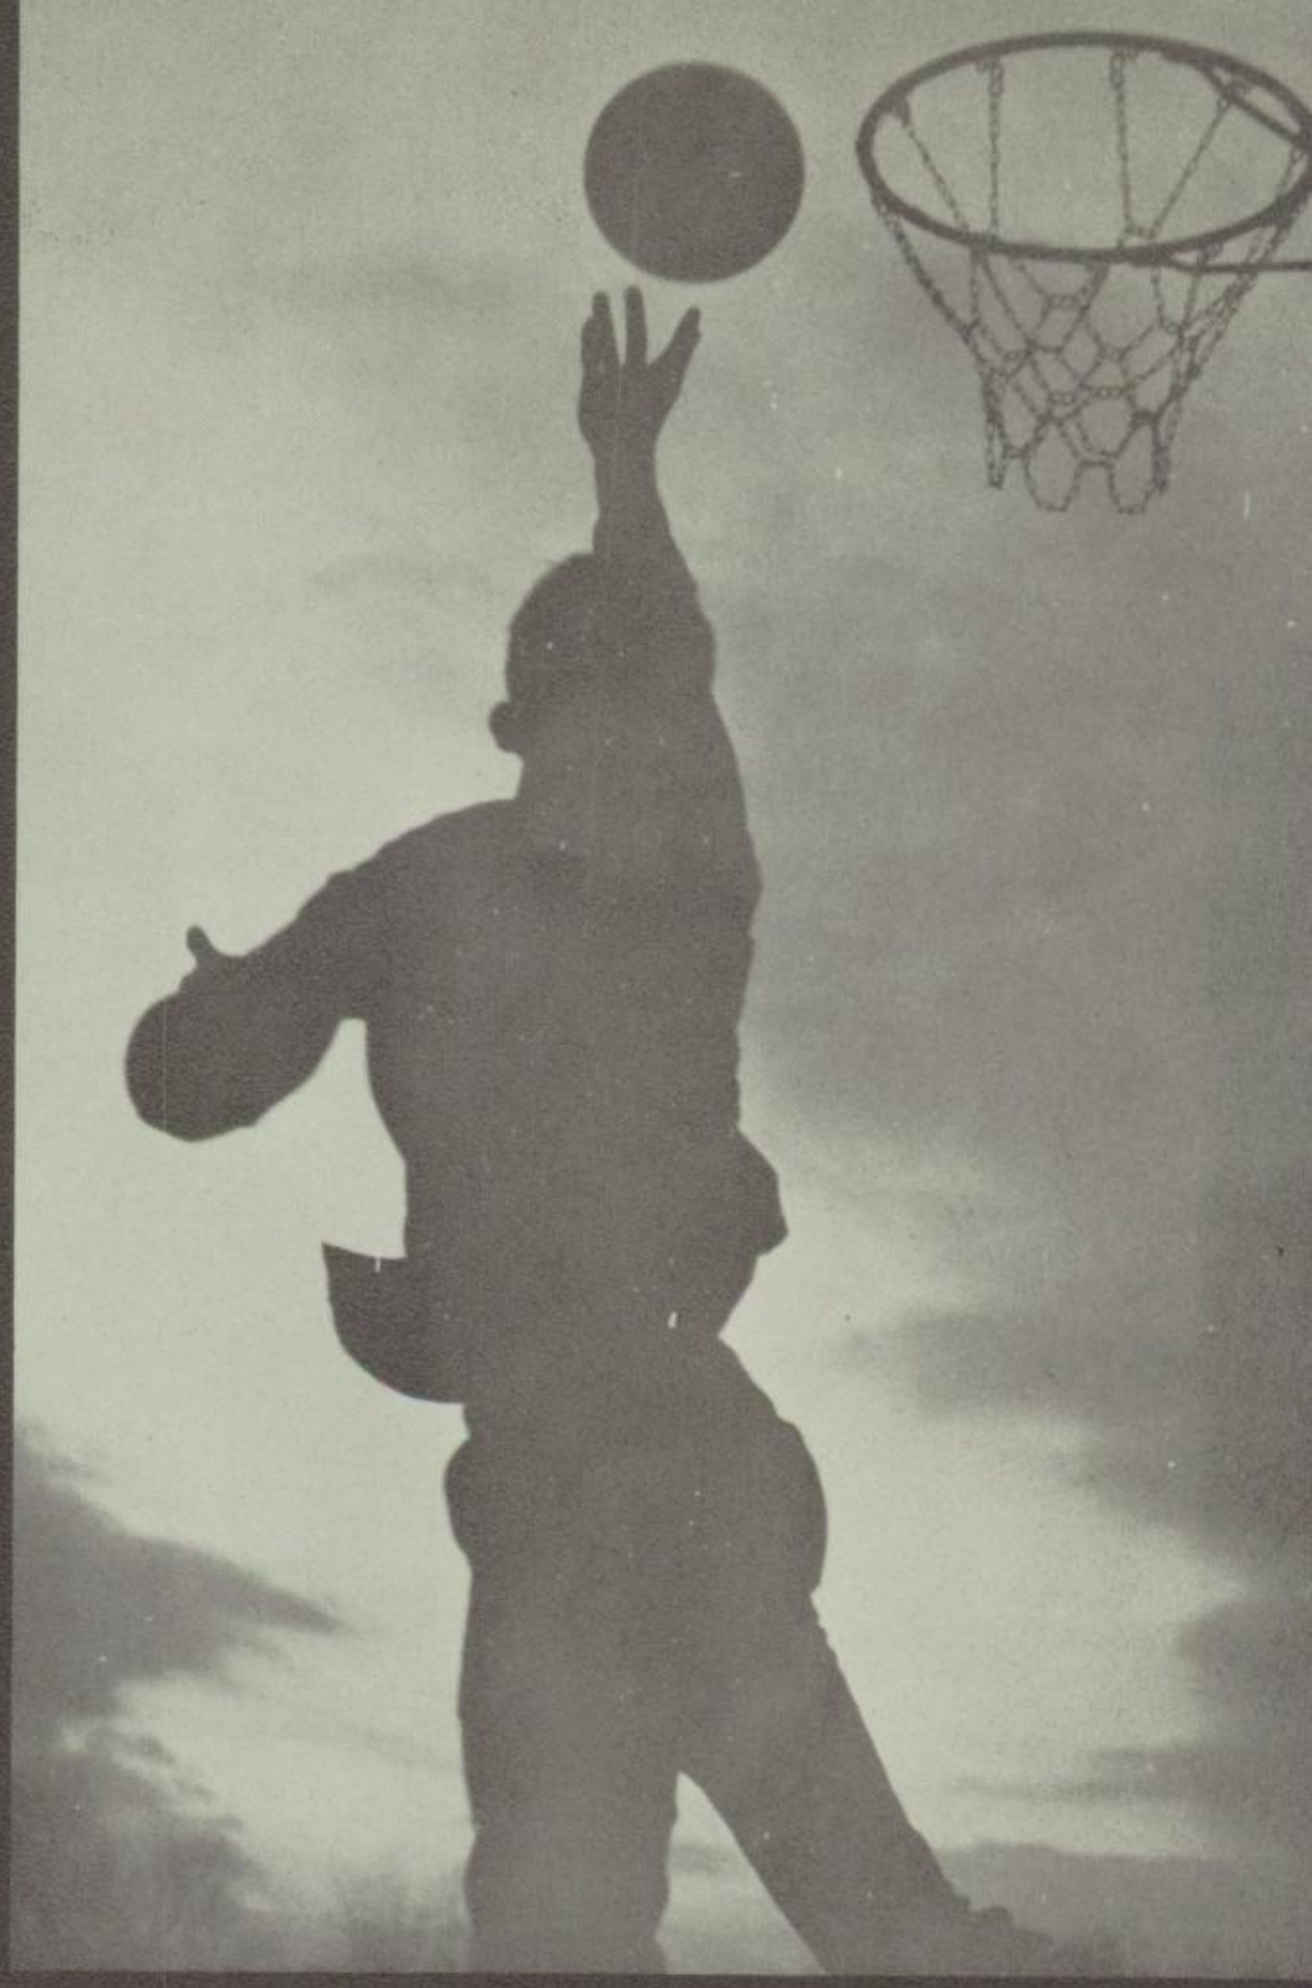


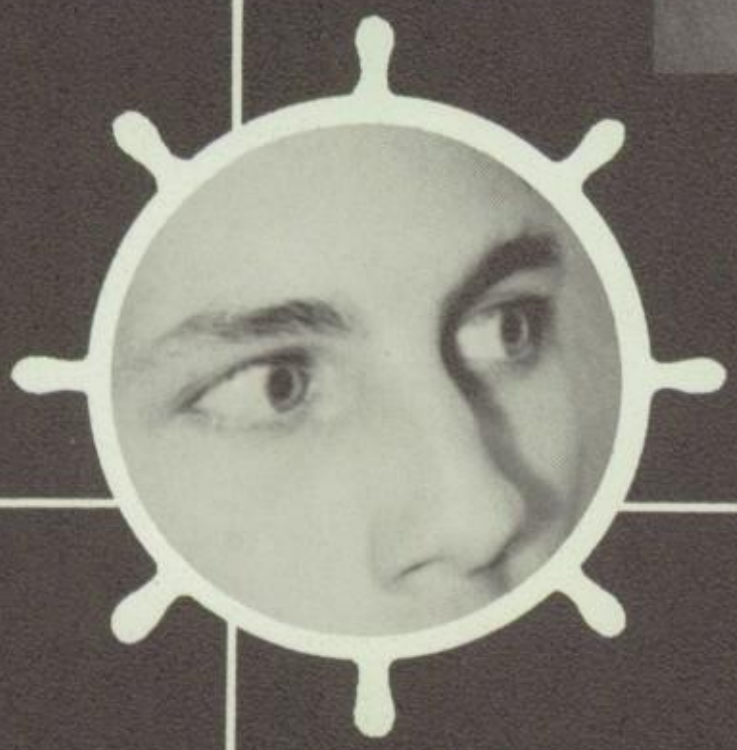
BROTHER CHARLES also finds the beauty of nature conducive to reflection.

Exploring Life Individually Through

CULTIVATION

I joy to polish tools and skills
Through disciplines of rules and drills;
I find the grace
To break my face;
And take new heart when friends embrace
My dream's aspiring hope.



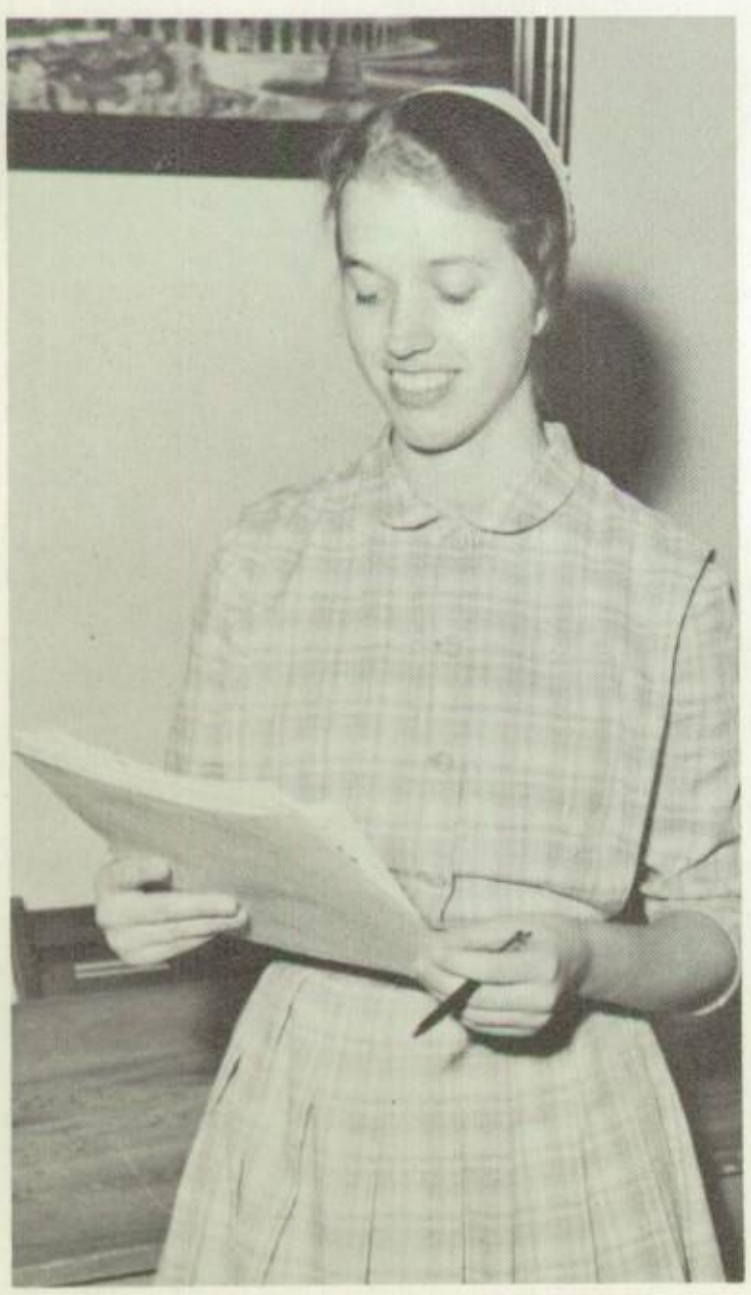


The Mill Stream

MILL STREAM

Deadlines and more deadlines . . . endless assignments . . . sharing abstract ideas and building concrete layout from them . . . changing . . . substituting . . . more rushing while waiting for the printer—Such is the hectic schedule of these seniors who supervise the production of our eight-page monthly.

EDITOR, Leona S. Kraybill.



MANAGING EDITOR, Robert D. Hostetter.

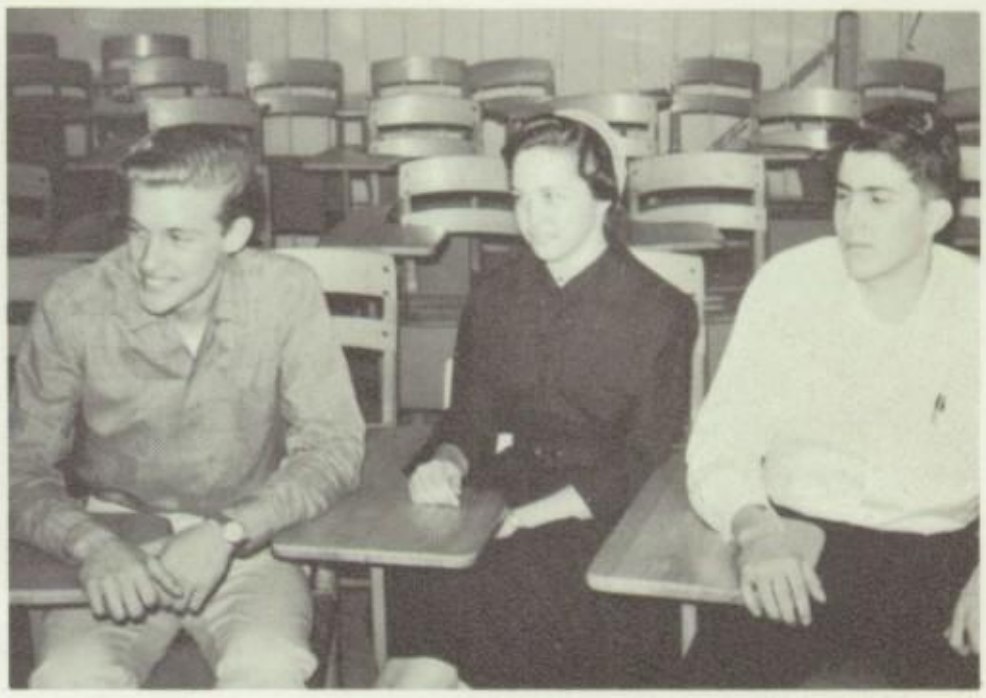
OFFICERS OF SECOND STUDENT FORUM: Ralph Nafziger, president; Mary Lois Keener, secretary.



CHAIRMEN OF SECOND STUDENT FORUM: Nevin Lantz, spiritual life committee; Doris Blank, recreation committee; Don Showalter, art committee.

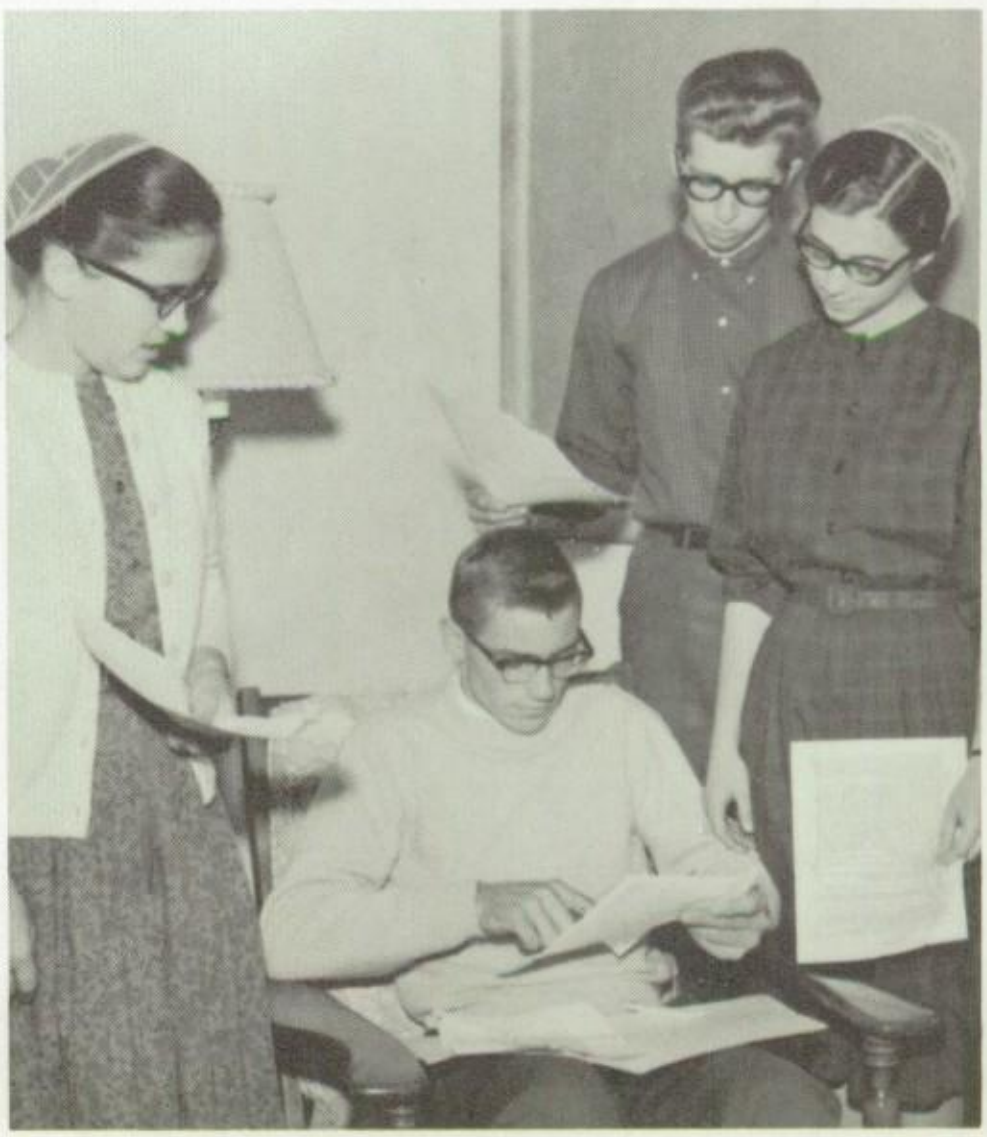
SOCIETIES

SOCRATARIANS

Wisdom — Blue and white — "The Open Window," by Saki—Socrates—basketball games—"The Fear" by Robert Frost—"Striving Onward, Capturing Skills" — This characterizes the "Socs" and their goal to carry out the purpose of their Society: To develop talents and an appreciation for the fine arts and to create a healthy competitive dorm spirit.

A SCENE FROM "The Open Window" as portrayed by the "Socs."

BANNER OF THE "SOCS."



OFFICERS OF THE SOCRATARIAN SOCIETY confer: Verna Mohler, adviser; Joseph Keener, president; Conrad Baer, vice-president; Mary Lois Keener, secretary-treasurer.

FAYE GARBER AND SAM MILLER playing the roles of Cinderella and Prince Charming in the Herculean production of "Cinderella."

HERCULEANS

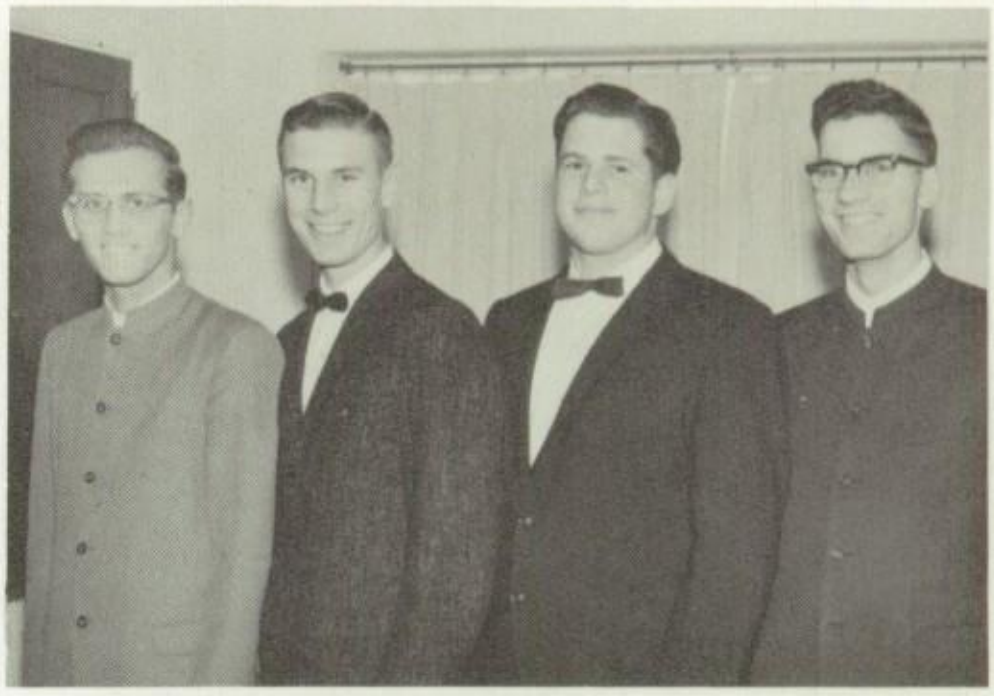
Strength—Red and white—"Cinderella" — Hercules — "Forward Striving for Perfection" — ping-pong tournaments with the "Socs"—Folk Songs—This is the Herculeans and their effort to achieve literary, musical, and artistic interests and appreciation, and like the "Socs," to create a healthy competitive dorm spirit.

BANNER OF THE "HERCS."

HERCULEAN SOCIETY OFFICERS DISCUSS PROGRAM IDEAS: Phoebe Erb, secretary-treasurer; Donald Showalter, vice-president; Paul Fretz, president; Marian Longenecker, adviser.

SENIOR QUARTETS

LADIES' DAY QUARTET: Faye Weaver, Doris Blank, Ruth Brubaker, Nedra Kauffman.



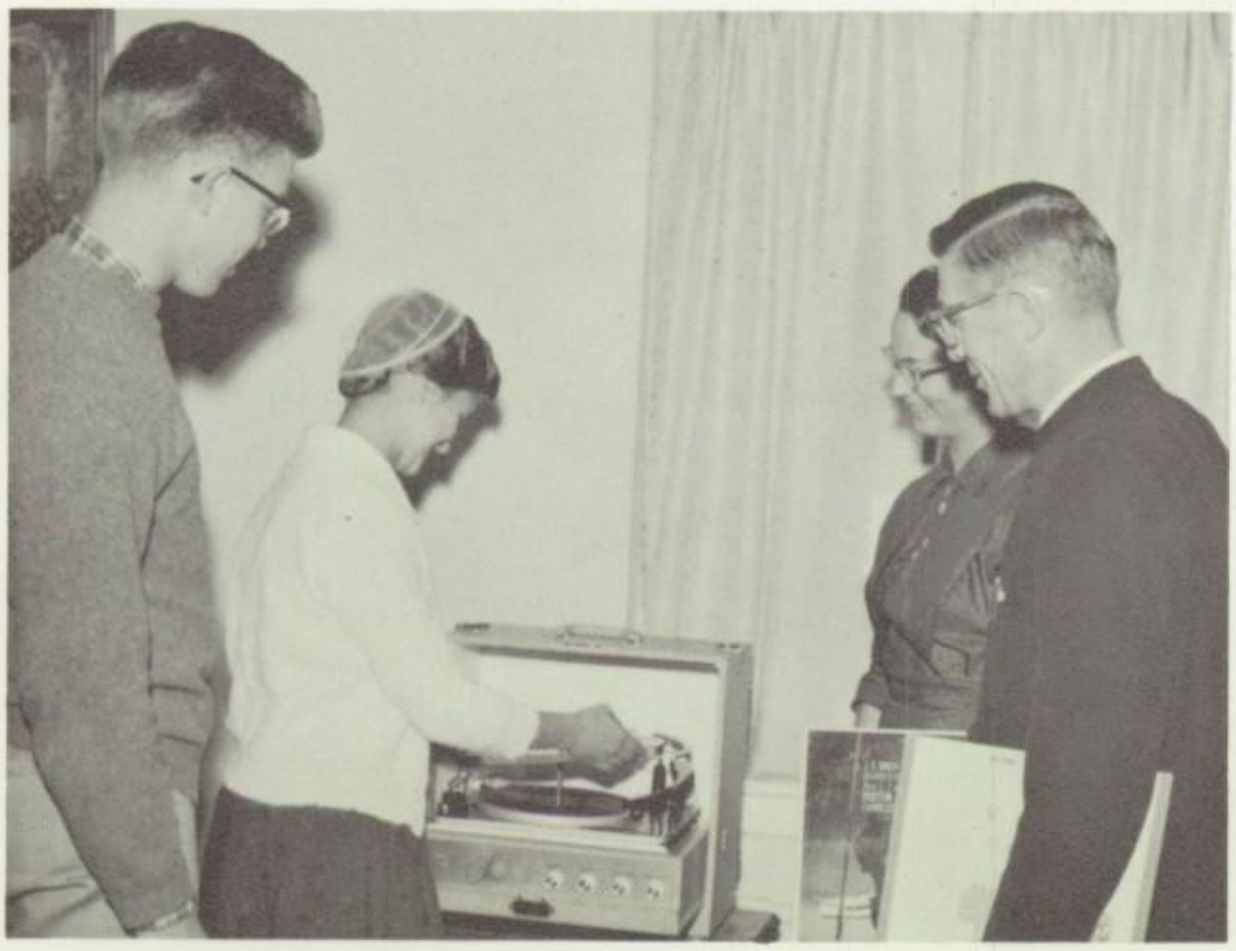
MEN'S DAY QUARTET: Richard Frey, Leon Good, Sylvan Ressler, Merle Good.

MEN'S DORM QUARTET: Conrad Baer, Samuel Miller, Joseph Keener, Clyde Hollinger.

LADIES' DORM SEXTET: Carole Strong, Linda Frey, Irene Reed, Jean Forwood, Naomi Horst, Edith Weber.

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN CREATIVE WRITING enjoy the lively discussions of the Stylus Club taught by A. Grace Wenger.

WILLARD SHERTZER LISTENS as Verna Stoltzfus scores a point in Public Speaking class. Students enjoy these opportunities of learning to express themselves.



MUSIC APPRECIATION STUDENTS learn to appreciate works of great composers like Vivaldi, Handel, and Beethoven. Here Ruth Ann Zimmerman spins a record for the class.

MEMBERS OF NURSES' CLUB watch exercises as Thelma Martin directs. They also took a trip to the General Hospital.

THE FIRST AID CLUB experiments with the use of a stretcher.

SISTER NOLT assists the gentlemen of Chefs' Club as they acquire the skills of their feminine classmates.

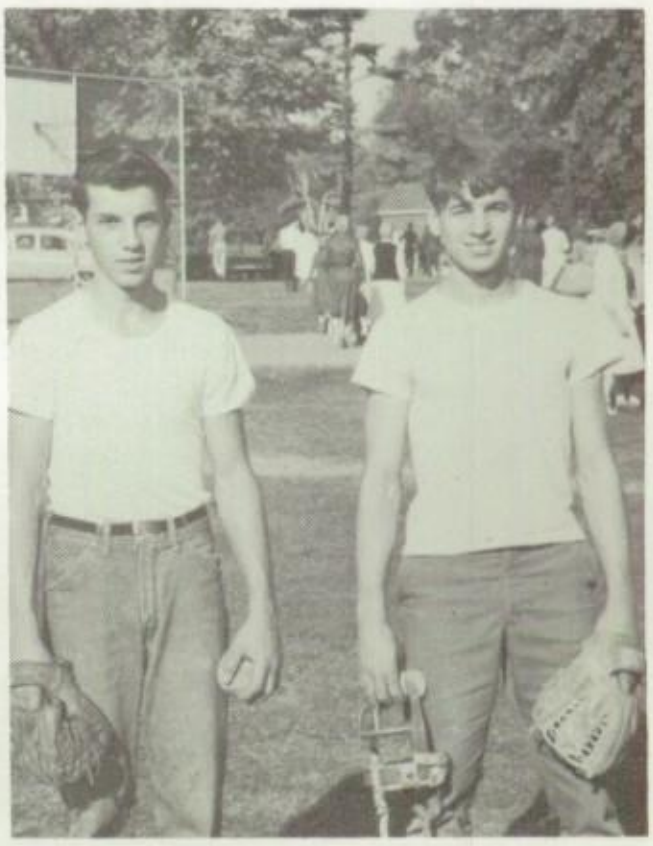
DRAWING CHRISTMAS DESIGNS keeps members of Art Club fascinated.

HELEN HOWARD TRIES her hand at the wheel of the Driver Education car as Brother Keener looks on.

CLAIR LEAMAN SNAPS a shot of Camera Club as they inspect their cameras. Tables turned, you see!

PAUL KURTZ fouls one off in junior-senior softball game. The juniors won.

SOFTBALL



THE WINNING BATTERY for the juniors: pitcher, Glenn Wyble; catcher, David Frey.

THE JUNIOR GIRLS cheer for their victorious fellows.

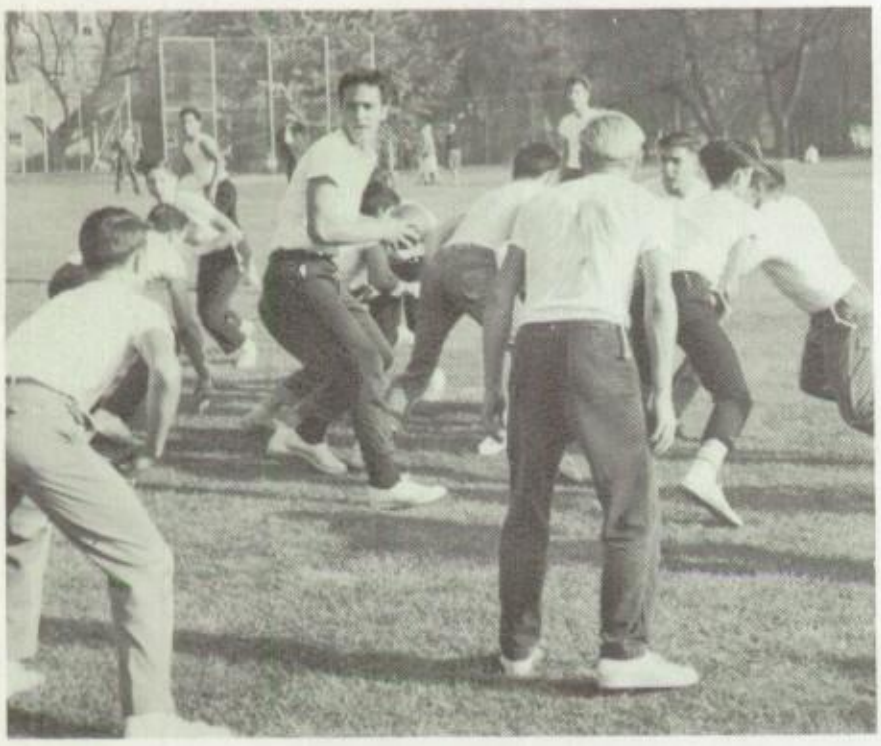
TEACHERS FIND DIVERSION in faculty-student competition. Here Brother Keener returns the ball while Brother Kreider gives encouragement.

VOLLEYBALL

SISTER LONGENECKER takes time out from English to bat at a volleyball.

ALL EYES ARE ON THE BALL as our principal sets up the ball to the front line.

DALE WEAVER OPENS the football season with a kick-off in the day-dorm game.



QUARTERBACK BOB BRUBAKER takes the ball from the "T," looks around, spots fullback Clifford Miller . . .

. . . and laterals back in a quick offensive play.

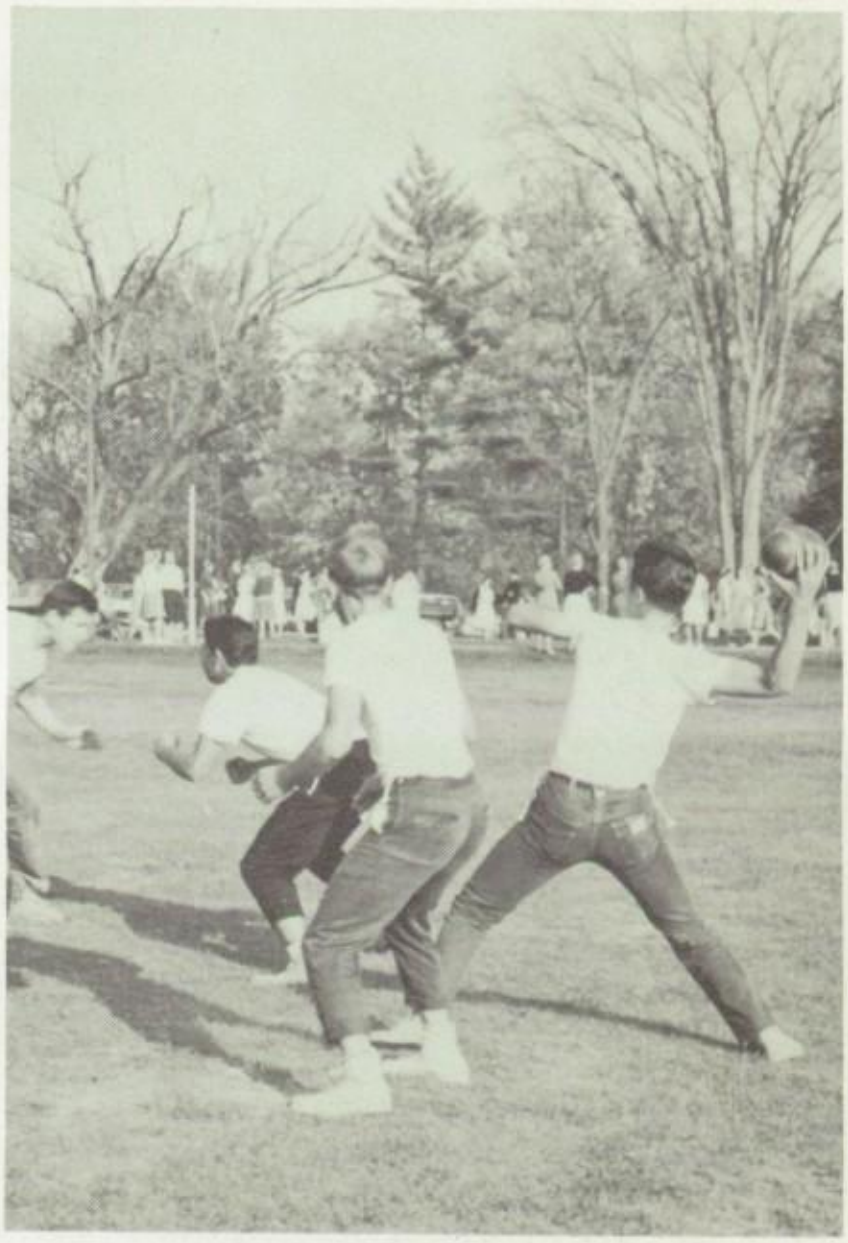
THE PLAY GETS INTO ACTION with the snap from center.



THE QUARTERBACK TAKES the ball and fades back for a long pass.

HALFBACK KEN MILLER carries the ball through a hole around the right end.

BASKETBALL

TENSION MOUNTS as Bob Brubaker shoots a foul shot.

AFTER SCHOOL is an excellent time for basketball practice.

HERE JOE KEENER FINDS that Sam Miller is also good at blocking

KENNETH MARTIN SPINS a foul shot into the basket during the freshman-sophomore game.

JUMP—STRETCH—AND DAVID MILLER gets the "tip-off."

"BLOCK THAT BALL, SAM!"

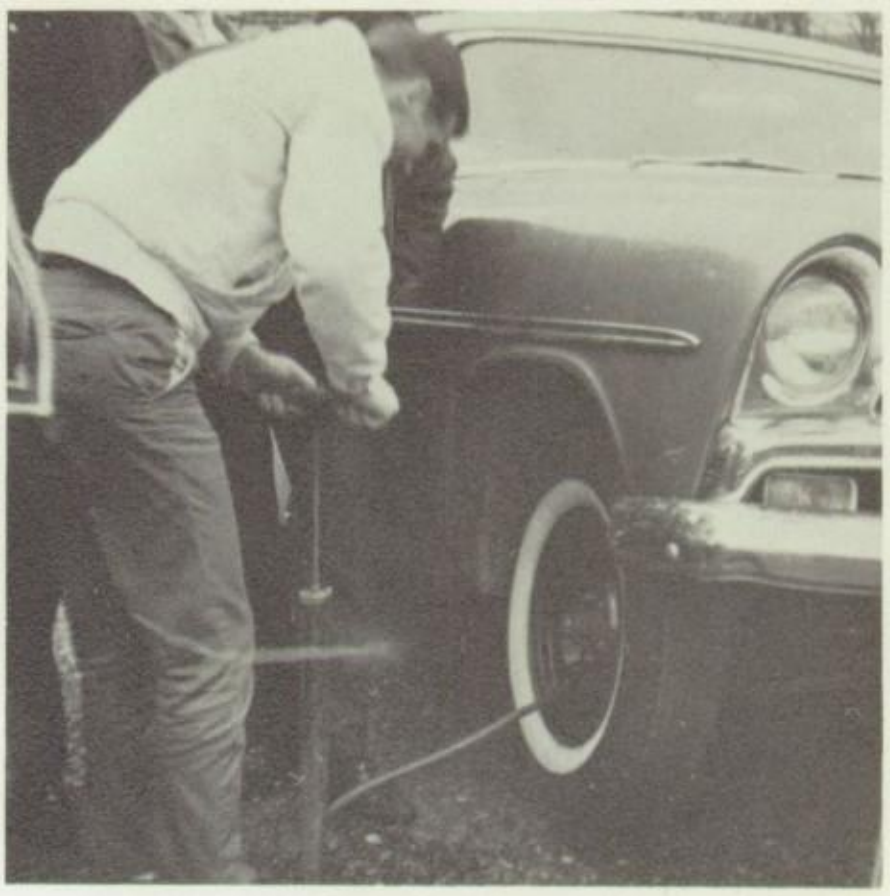
"GORDON, LET'S PLAY HOCKEY."

HEALTH CLASS DETECTIVES formulate conclusions.

JOANNE REACHES TO RETURN a high one during a brisk game of tennis.

WHO'S IN TROUBLE—the car or the fellows?

"MUCH STUDY IS A WEARINESS of the flesh."



DOES THAT PUMP REALLY WORK? Why not use your mouth?

DORM FELLOWS FIND DIVERSION in playing caroms.

DO THOSE FELLOWS REALLY know how to play Scrabble—or is it just their imagination?

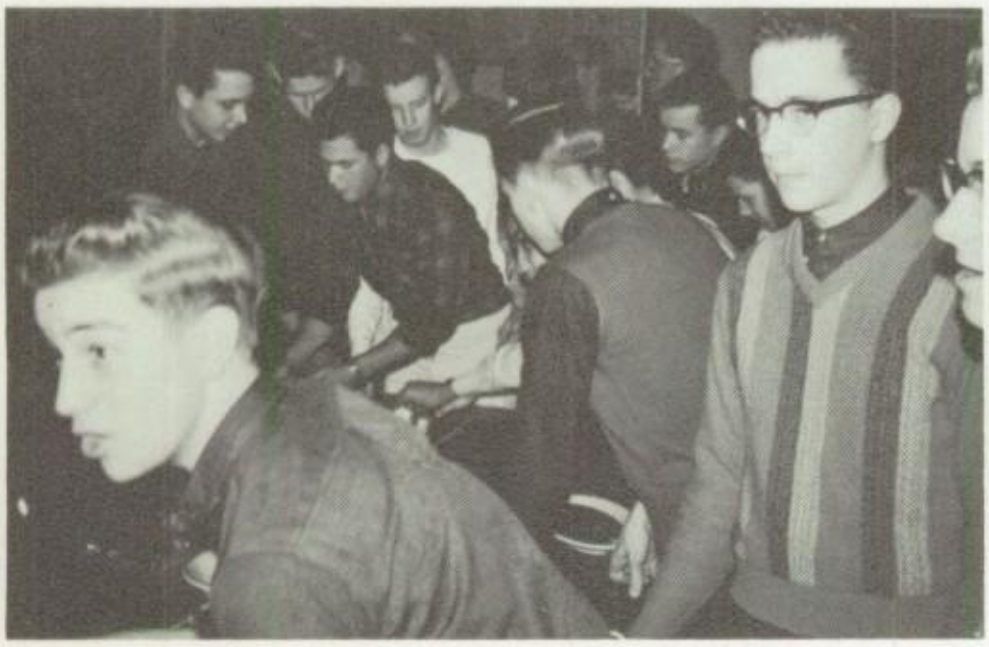
THE ANNUAL THANKSGIVING DINNER is a high light anticipated by dormitory students.



WHERE'S THE BUTTER? I want to pull taffy.

ANOTHER SOCIAL—AND WHO'S EATING—the girls or the fellows?

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED—whitest taffy!

REALLY, CLYDE, IF YOU ARE scared to look in the mirror, imagine how we feel!

FRIDAY EVENING BRINGS MUCH activity. Here our English teacher observes the packing—or is she supervising?

WHO'S THAT FELLOW trying to get a date for the weekend?

SOME ANTICIPATE WEEKENDS, and some regret them. Here Audrey Keener adds some dresses to the stock with a smile.

MELVIN EBY GLANCES AROUND before crawling into Allon Lefever's new Chevy.

"DON'T YOU DARE TAKE THAT PICTURE," implored Bob Hostetter. But we shot him anyway!

CALL IT SLIDING, slipping, or slopping; campus life can be pretty unpleasant when it decides to "make down spritz."

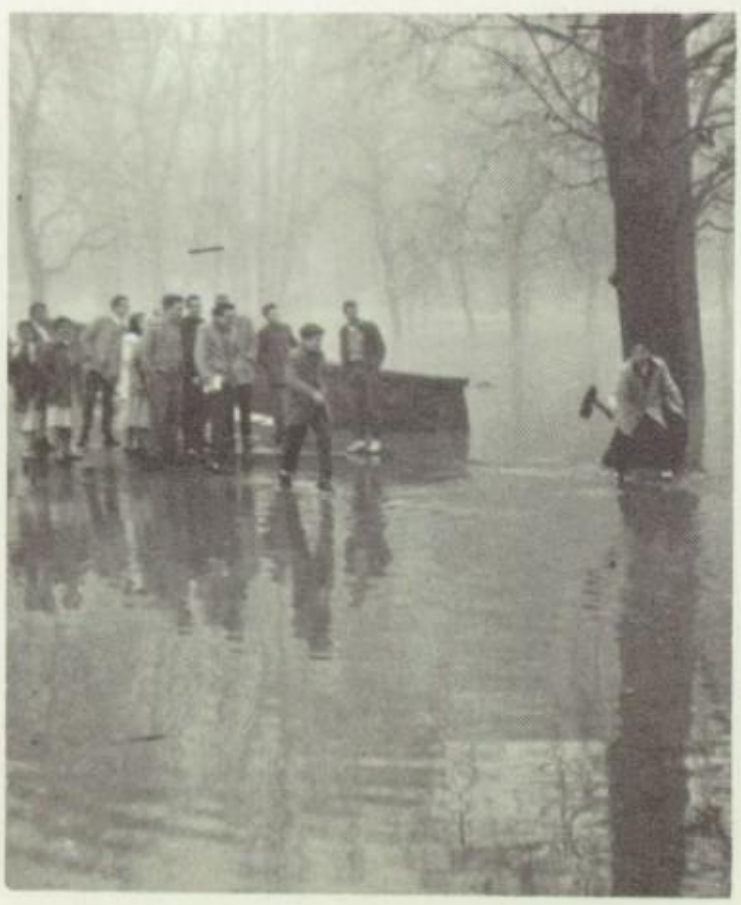
CHUNKS OF ICE JAM the flooded Mill Stream.

WOULD SOMEONE PLEASE CALL THE DEAN? There's a teacher stranded on south campus.

IS THAT A GROUP OF RESCUE WORKERS, newspaper reporters, or curious student spectators?

NO, THESE ARE NOT EX-CONVICTS, nor are they scheming conspirators; they're just two of our teachers discussing flood possibilities.

DID SOMEONE FORGET the application of women's intuition?



FORREST BOYDEN FISHES OUT someone's shoe.

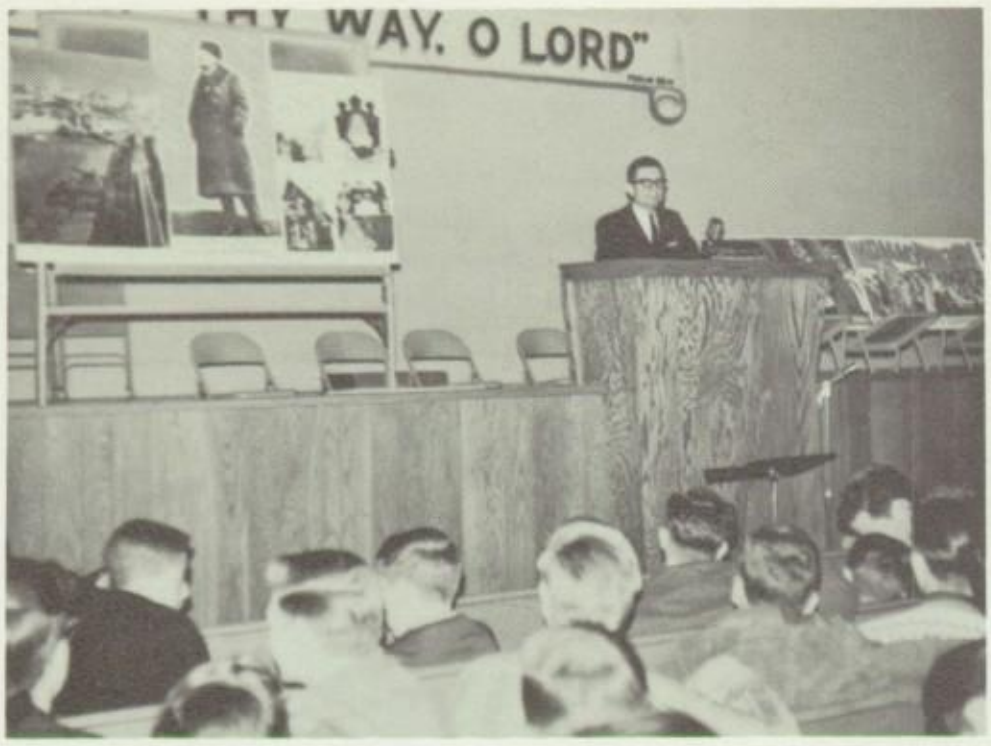
WHEN THE CREEK RETURNS TO ITS NORMAL LEVEL, it leaves huge pieces of ice clinging to the bank.

JAMES HESS, chairman of the board of trustees, speaks at the ground-breaking ceremony for the new classroom building.

RALPH NAFZIGER, REPRESENTING THE STUDENTS as Student Forum president, participates in the ceremony.

THE NEXT MORNING, students watch as the "big cat" moves the first earth.

WITH THE BLESSING of rain came abundance of mud.

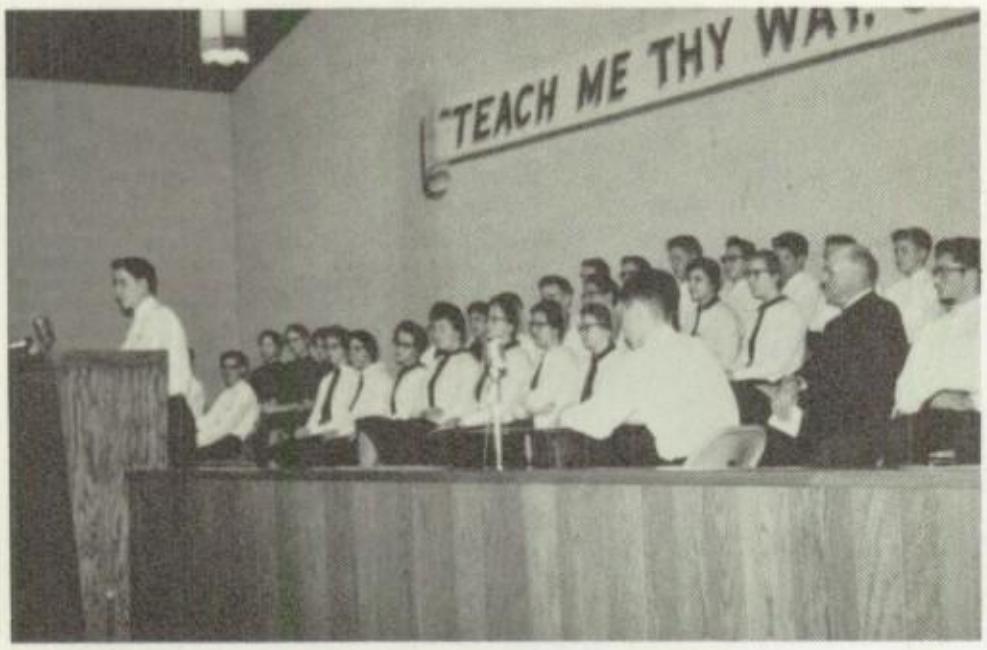


DR. KOVACH LECTURED to the student body on communism.

THOSE MOMENTS BEFORE CHORUS PROGRAMS can be tense until we find relaxation in surrender to Christ.

ELLROSE ZOOK FROM MPH IN SCOTTDALE conducted the LMS Junior Literature Workshop in November.

MEN'S CHORUS HUDDLES for a last-minute tune-up.



JUNIOR PRESIDENT, WAYNE HOCHSTETLER, addresses the parents on Junior Parents' Day.

THEY CALL THESE THINGS IMPROMPTU DUETS, and this happens to be a "Good" one.

NOWS THAT'S GIRLS FOR YOU—one laughs at you, another snaps the camera, and the rest won't even look your way.

ANYONE CAN SEE THAT THESE SENIOR FELLOWS should win the annual tug of war—and they did too!

JOE KEENER WORKS HARD to arrange his room for open house.

MISCHIEVOUS SNIP! She hides in the closet to eat a stolen apple.

"TIME FOR LIGHTS OUT, fellows," exclaims Don Kraybill, hall manager in the Senior Boys' Dorm.

THE TAFFY WAS TOO GOOEY, but we ate it just the same—and was it ever messy!

ARE YOU HUNGRY, Irene?

CLASS POEM

THE SENIOR'S LAST THOUGHTS

A dozen lengthy volumes slowly fill and close behind our virgin tread;
A thousand swinging doors entice us to pursue the fate their portals spread;
A band of faithful teachers wipe their brows, step back to watch what Years reveal;
Three hundred praying parents smile to hide the fears and hopes their hearts conceal;
And we—so immature and insecure—
Step out in what most older folks call life.
We've loved
the campus of our school days,
the excitement of growth,
the smile of a sweetheart;
We've learned
to explore applications of knowledge, to accept tragic disappointments,
to cherish warm comradeship;
We've seen
the dope addict's needle,
the union boss's big stick,
the assassin's smoking rifle;
We've heard
the threats of selfish competitors,
the cry of starving refugees,
the shouts of angry playmates;
We've felt
the frustration of restless juveniles, the bitter hatred of power-hungry rebels,
the loneliness of cultural up-and-outs;
We've asked
why beauty must be distorted,
when truth will claim men's loyalties,
where love shall reign in peace;
We've known
that life is short, uncertain, empty, that man is basically evil,
that God is Ruler over all.
Yet once again—
we love the story of our Lord,
we learn His word of truth,
we see His empty tomb,
we hear His voice,
we feel His power,
we ask why He should love us so,
and yet we know that we are His.
Twelve candles flickered in life's dawn, and now our heart's aflame with sparks from youth;
A thousand voices lured us to support their cause, and now we hear God's truth;
And though we know not where or when or why the varied steps of life may be,
We trust our Lord and are content to know the One who guides our lives is He;
And thus we give Him all to conquer all
As ready tools for Christ, our Master King.

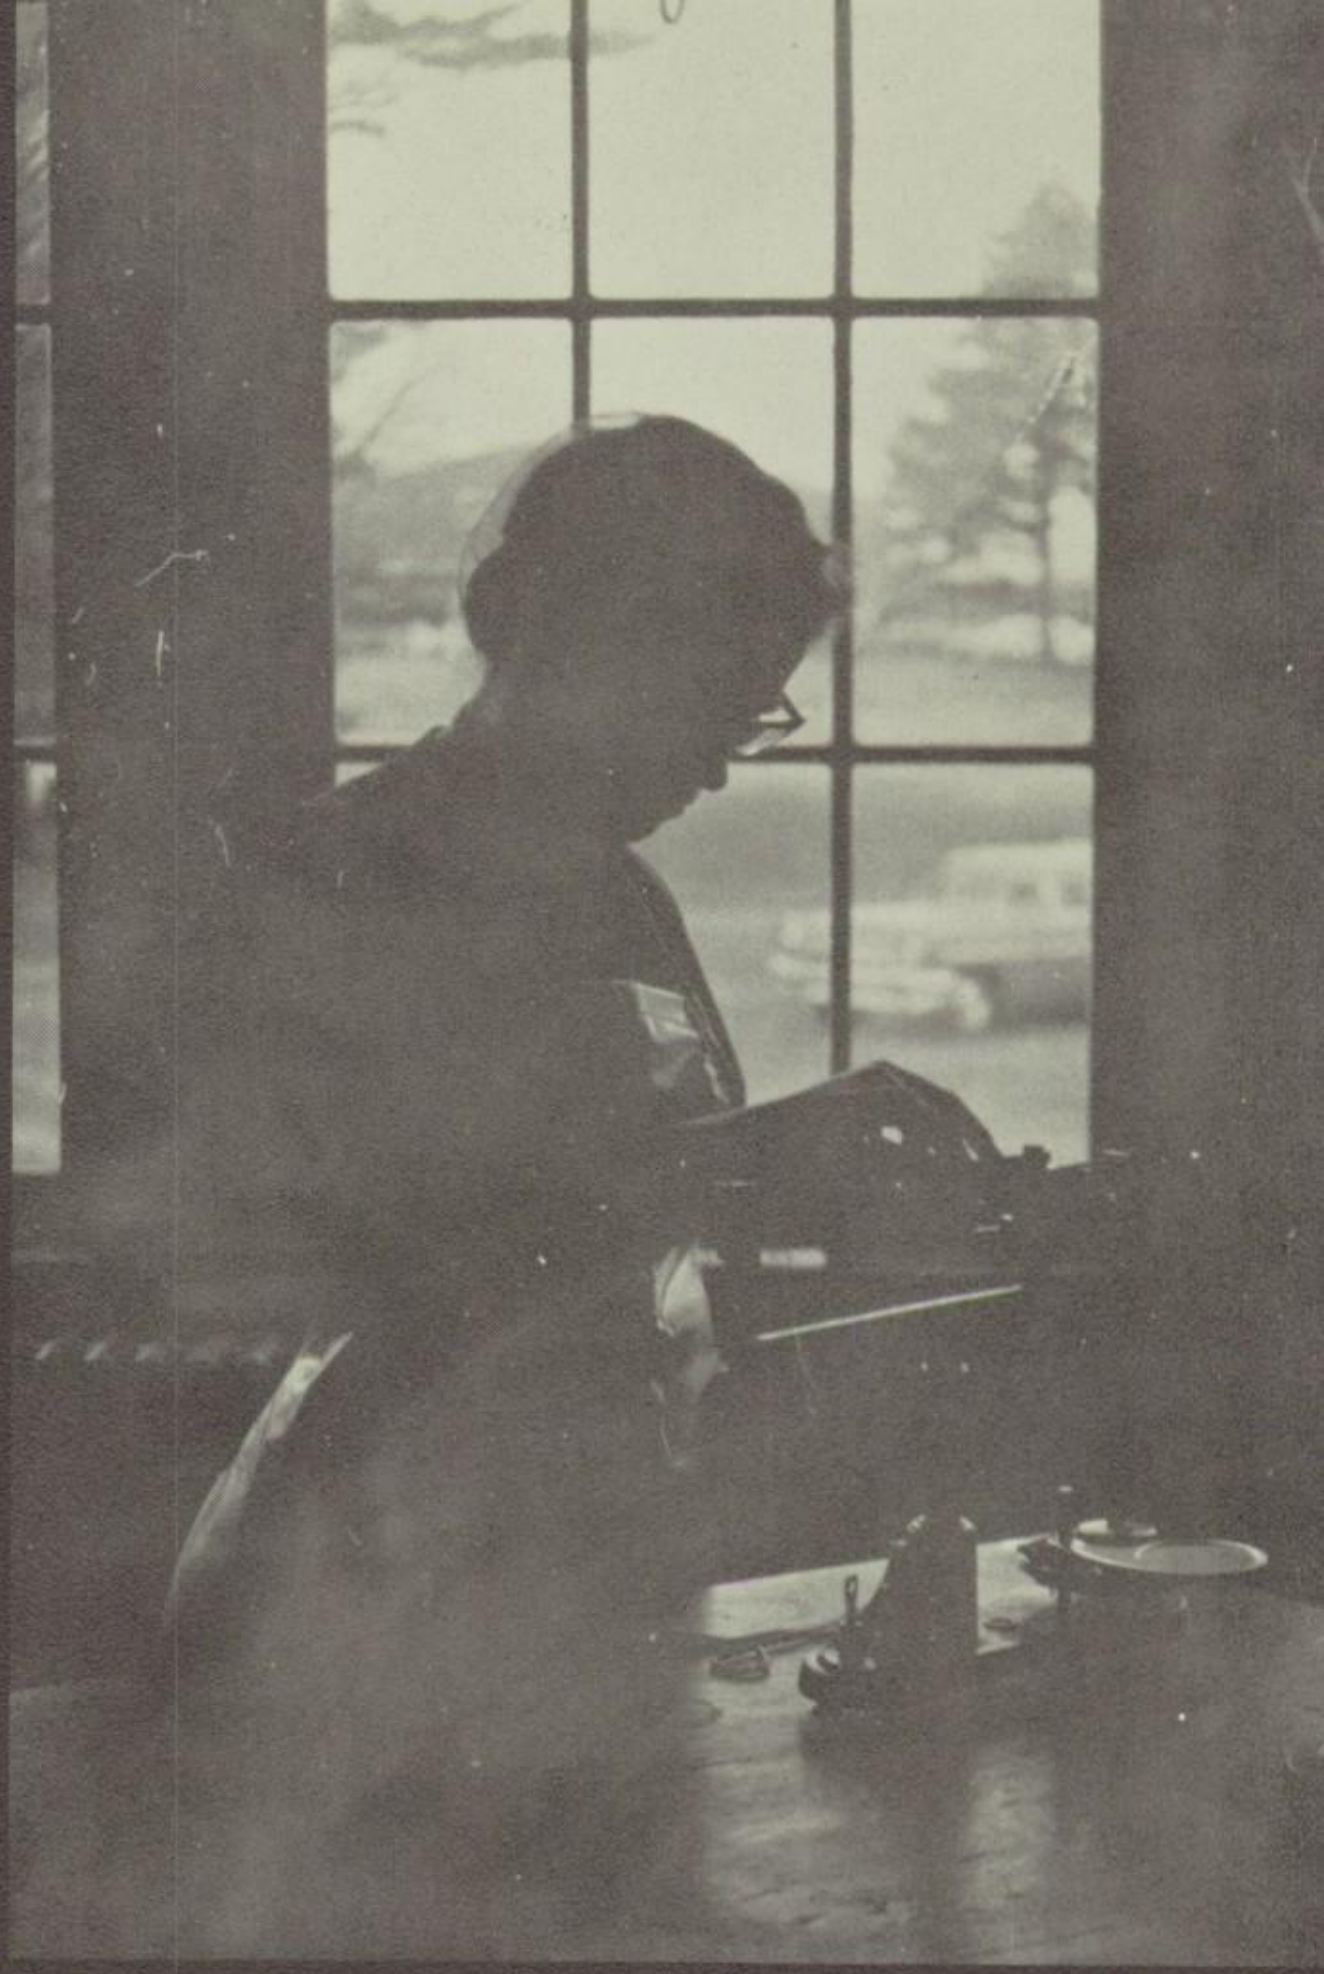
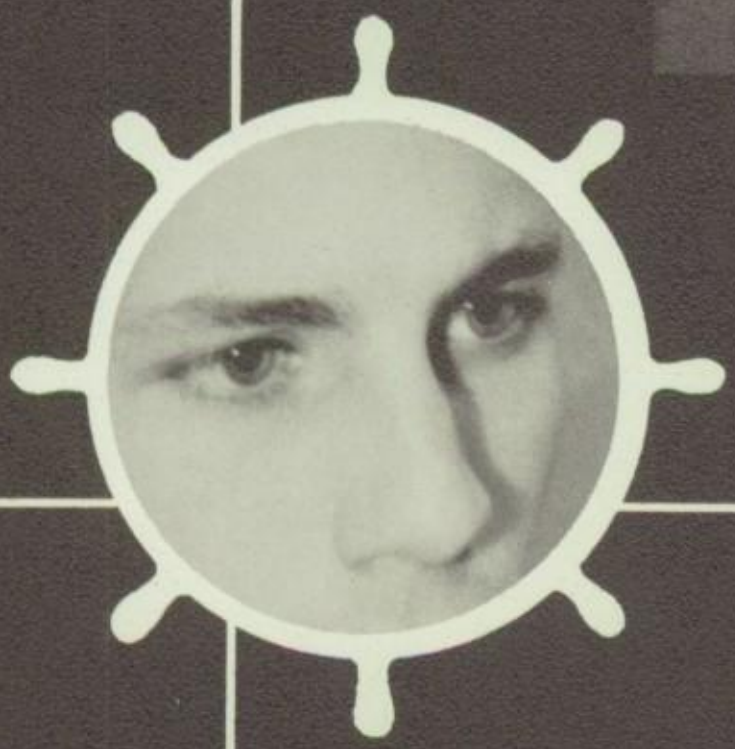
CONCENTRATION

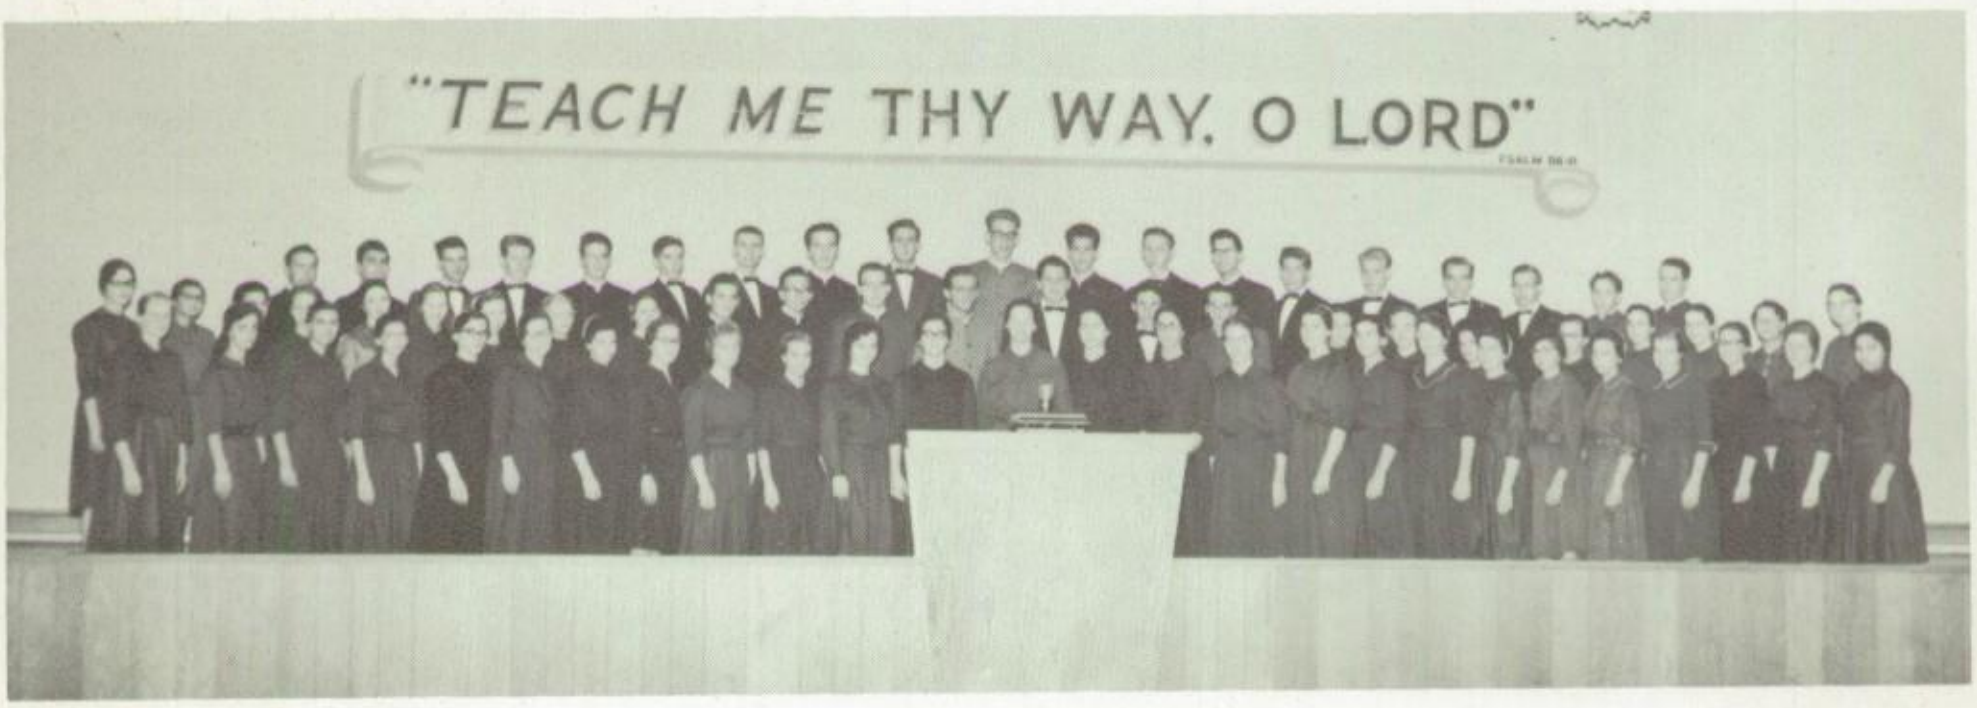
I study thoughts and lives of men
Of scholarship whose mind and pen
Helped knowledge grow;
And oft I go
Beyond, inquisitive to know.
I grasp experience best.





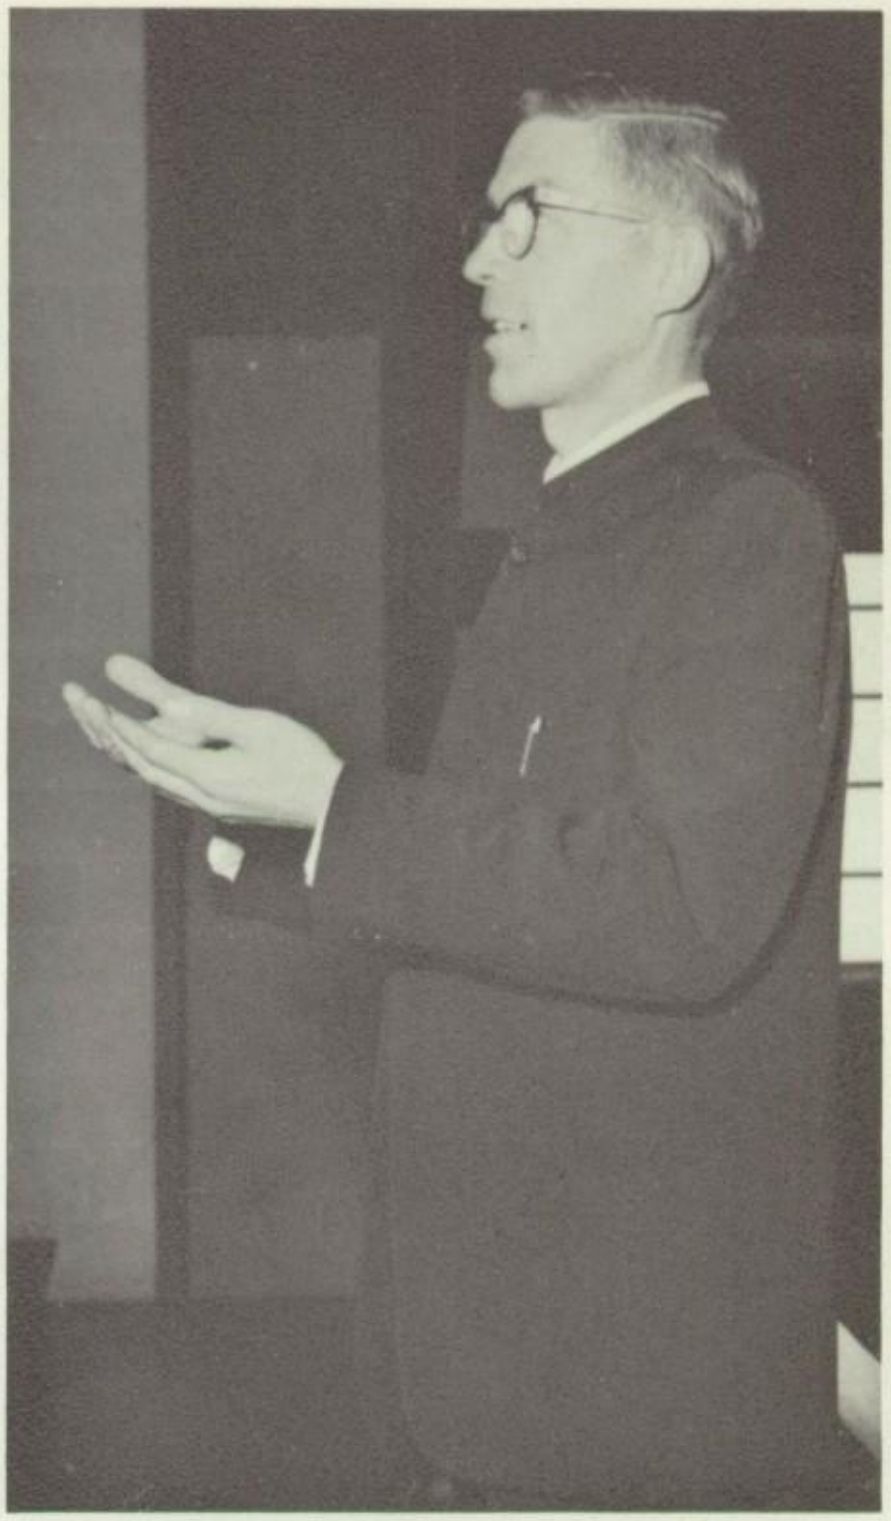
JUNIOR CHORUS.

SENIOR CHORUS 9:50—10:40.



CHORUSES

We found relief in participating in those chorus practices—in exploring new music, mellowing our tones, perfecting our notes and dedicating polished talent. The warm reception of chorus programs gives us a new thrill with a sensation bordering on immortality. We thank God for the opportunity of this experience.



CHORUS DIRECTOR, Arnold Moshier.

MEN'S CHORUS.

LADIES' CHORUS.

BROTHER MOSHIER explains what he has written on the board to his Music II cl

SISTER NOLT shows her Home Economics class an interior decorating poster.

Acquiring the skills

IN SHOP CLASS BROTHER LENTZ discusses some designs with two fellows while Larry Temple works on his project.

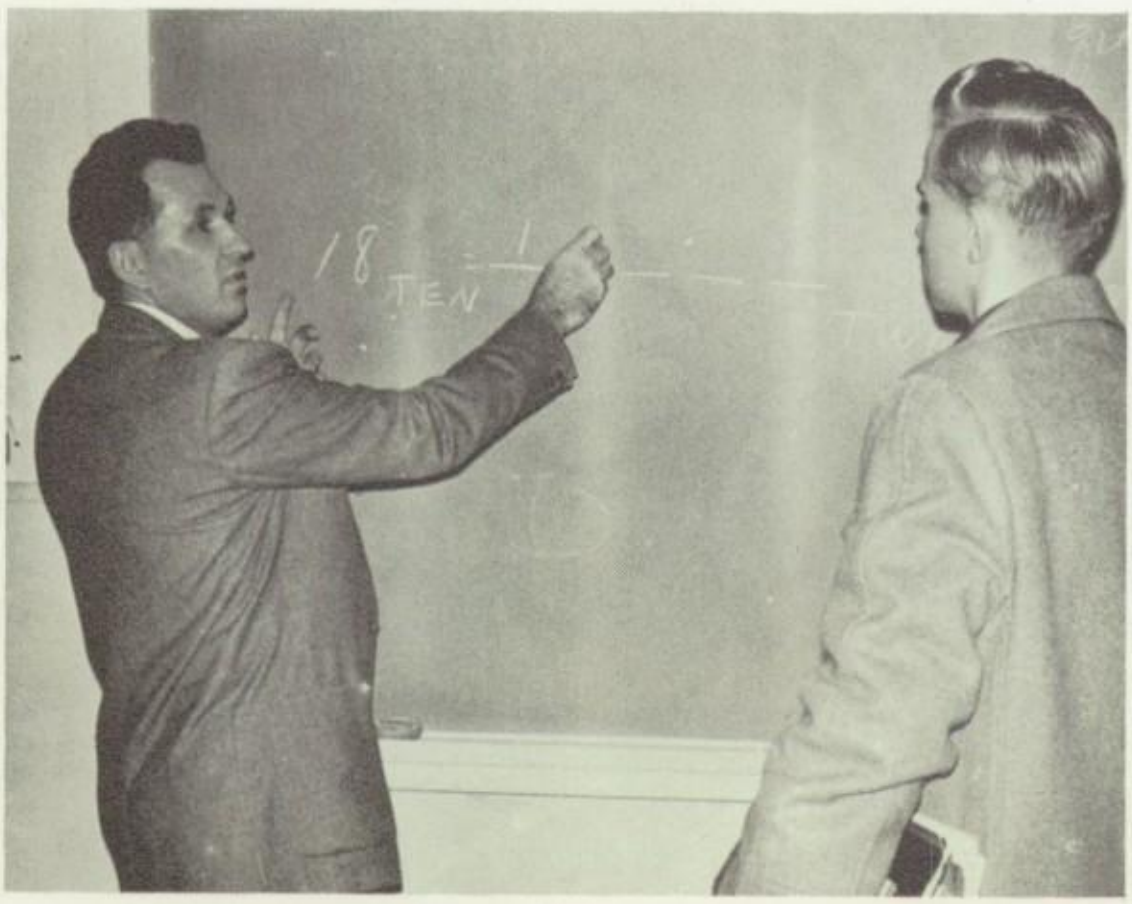
BROTHER WENGER explains to Glen Good just what happens when a solution of cupric sulfate is distilled.

Accumulating the facts

AFTER LEARNING COMES THE TESTING. Here Janice Sauder receives a chemistry test.

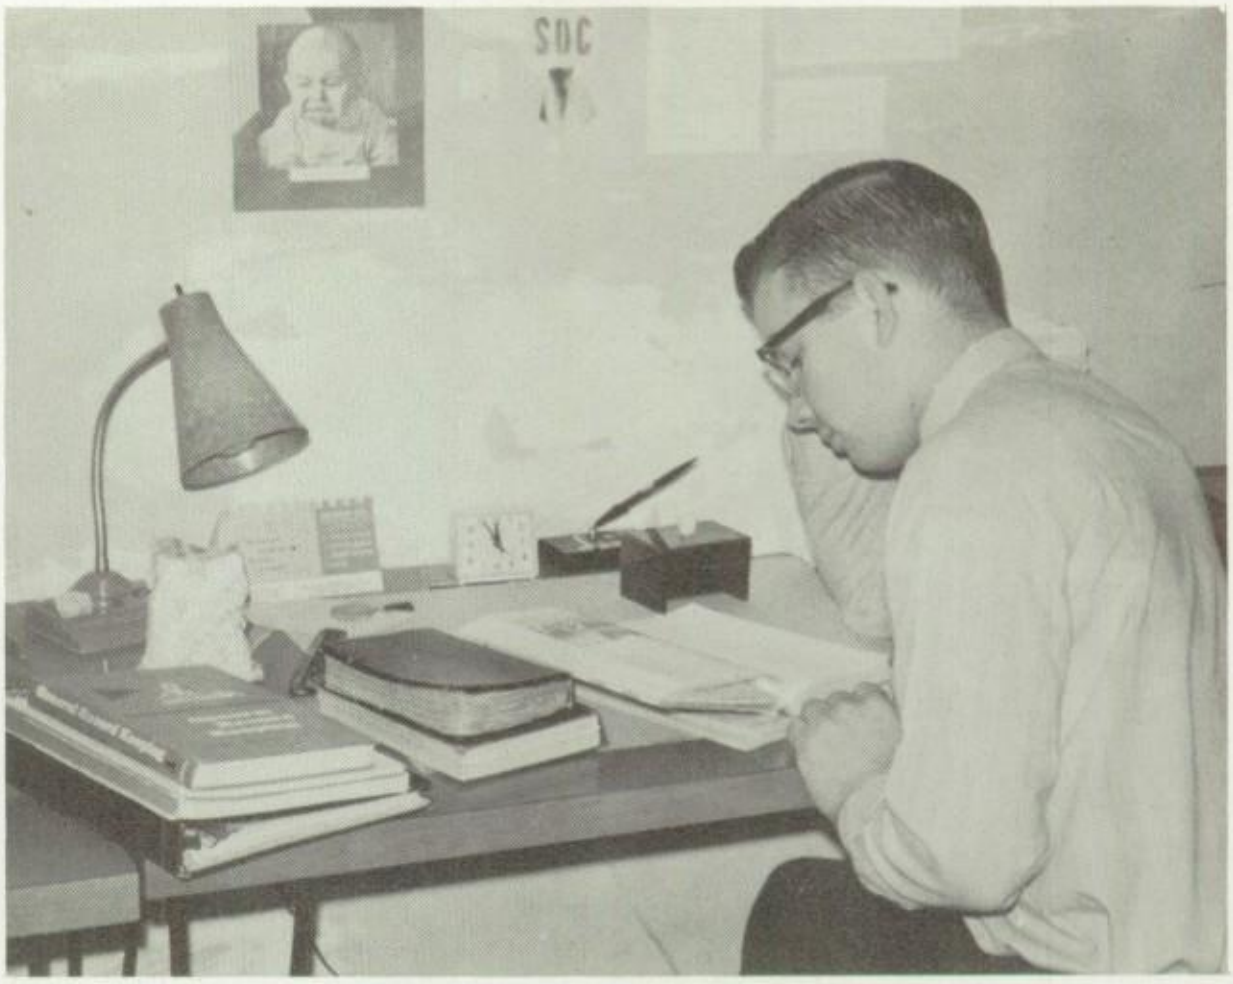
SOMETIMES CLASS DISCUSSIONS became really interesting in Brother Charles' Bible Doctrine Class.

Questioning the procedures



BROTHER KREIDER HELPS Ray Kuhns to change the number eighteen from the decimal system to the binary system.

Applying the methods



CLYDE HOLLINGER MAKES every minute count by cramming a few minutes for P. O. D.

LESSONS CAN BE VERY perplexing at times. Emory Scholl doesn't seem to understand what Bob Hostetter is telling him.

OCCASIONALLY, DURING THE WINTER, this is what happens.

Learning from others

THE 2:10 PERIOD ON THURSDAY can be very interesting. One time a state trooper spoke on safe driving.

Exploring Life Individually Through

CONSULTATION

I seek advice when failure knocks;
I make mistakes and scrape the rocks—
So juvenile!
But yet they smile
And in their kindly, helpful style Console as Jesus would.

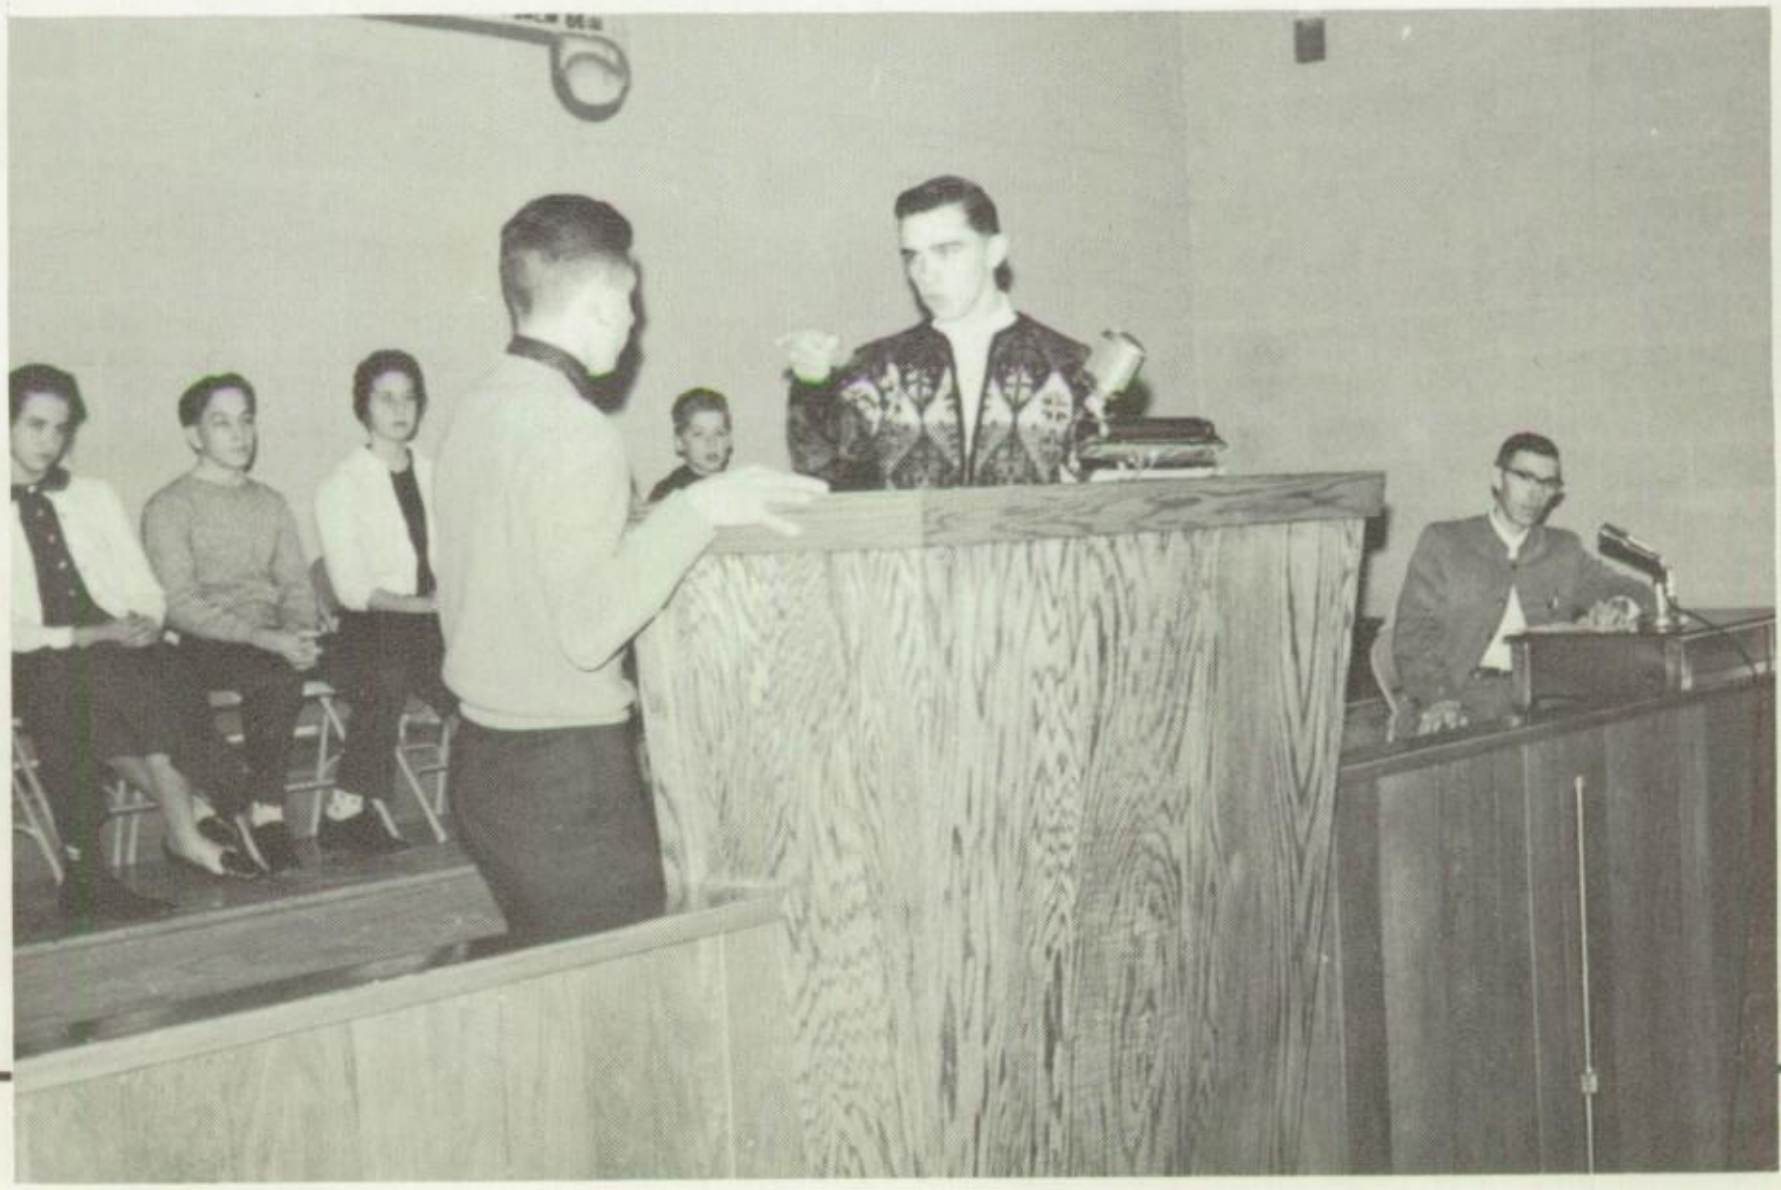
JUNIORS

JUNIORS BECOME BETTER ACQUAINTED at their first social. It looks as if the blind are feeding the blind.

JUNIORS PRESENT Dickens' Christmas Carol. Ben Wenger, Marley's ghost, points menacingly at John Landis, Scrooge.



We juniors can't help but think that maybe we're reaching maturity. The excitement of electing our class officers . . . disciplining ourselves to worship in chapel . . . participating in class socials . . . Christmas caroling . . . and really learning to be bored with school—it's all a part of growing up, we believe. We came to recognize that failure is just as much a part of life as is success.

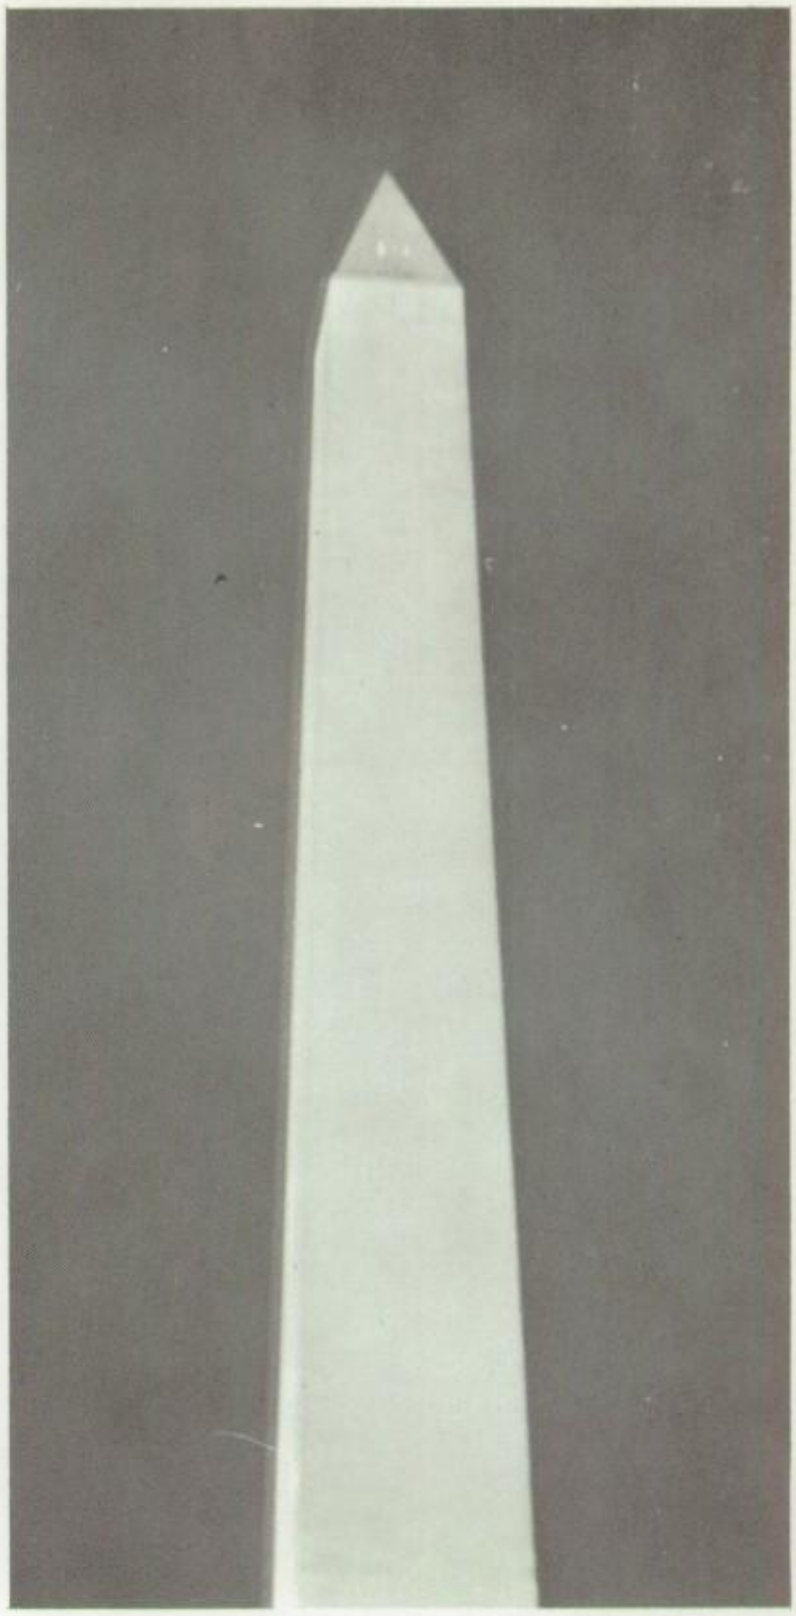
FAYE GARBER renders dinner music on the Washington trip.



IT WAS HERE that the seniors got the wettest.

THE SENIORS ENJOY a formal dinner at the Hotel Continental.

SENIORS

Somehow it seems funny to be a senior. We begin to look beyond, weighing the future. We can't help being interested in those P.O.D. and Bible Doc. discussions. And while we get caught up in the rush of school life and current events—picture-taking . . . "spritzy" class trip . . . November 22 tragedy . . . frustrations of social life . . . meeting graduation requirements . . . deepening devotion—we wonder whether this is the beginning or the end.

SENIOR OFFICERS: James H. Thomas, president; Ruth Brubaker, secretary; Richard Frey, vice-president; Martha Kreider, treasurer.

SENIOR ADVISERS: Miriam Wenger, Donald Mellinger, and Elton Moshier.

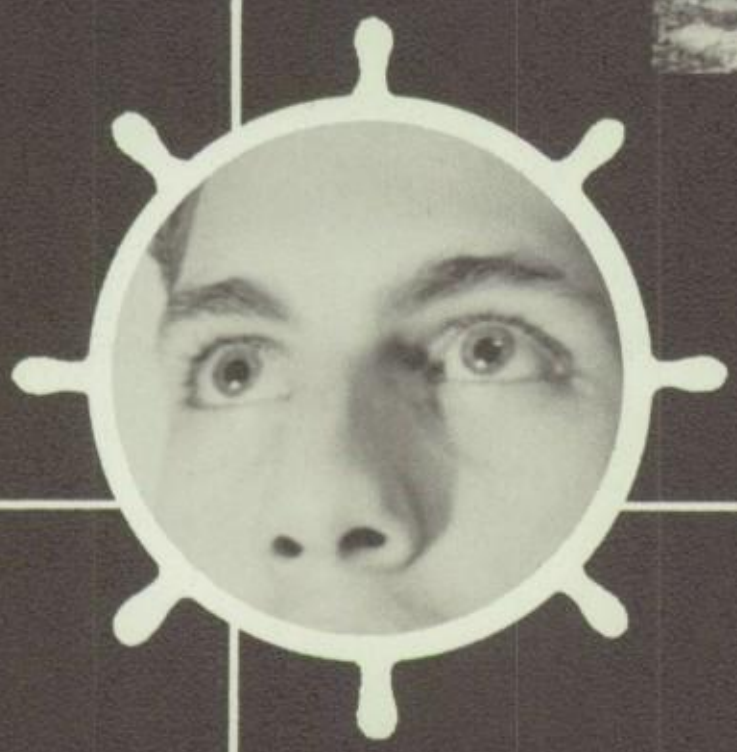
Exploring Life Individually Through

CONSECRATION

I seek for meaning in my life
In victory's wreath, in failure's knife.
I yearn to be
As pure as He,
And understand breath's mystery—
Confusing, yet profound.



I thank Thee, Lord,

I feel the impact of teen-age frustration, friction, failure; I question life, I fear all men, I doubt myself. "Disappointment, my son, refines one's heart."

For question marks
Imprinted on the bleeding edges of my heart;

For bare and jagged mountain peaks
Which hide the promise in the sunset's flame;

So cold these mountains! No life, no hope, no future. I hate them. But alas, the warmth of promise in the sunset it hides. "Take heart, my son."

For closing doors

In which I see my own reflection;

The door closes abruptly; through the twilight I see my ambition and in the door, my own image reflected; I bow my head. "My son, there's salvation in mirrors."

Curiosity, criticism, and discontentment drive me to break my shallow capsule of sentimentalism and insincerity. "There's true reality, my son, in living deep."

For heat and drought

Compelling roots to seek for depth;

I flee to dreamland when stark facts overwhelm me; time helps me to accept and forget. "To hope and do, my son, is to progress."

For dreamland's moonlit silhouettes
Which camouflage realities;

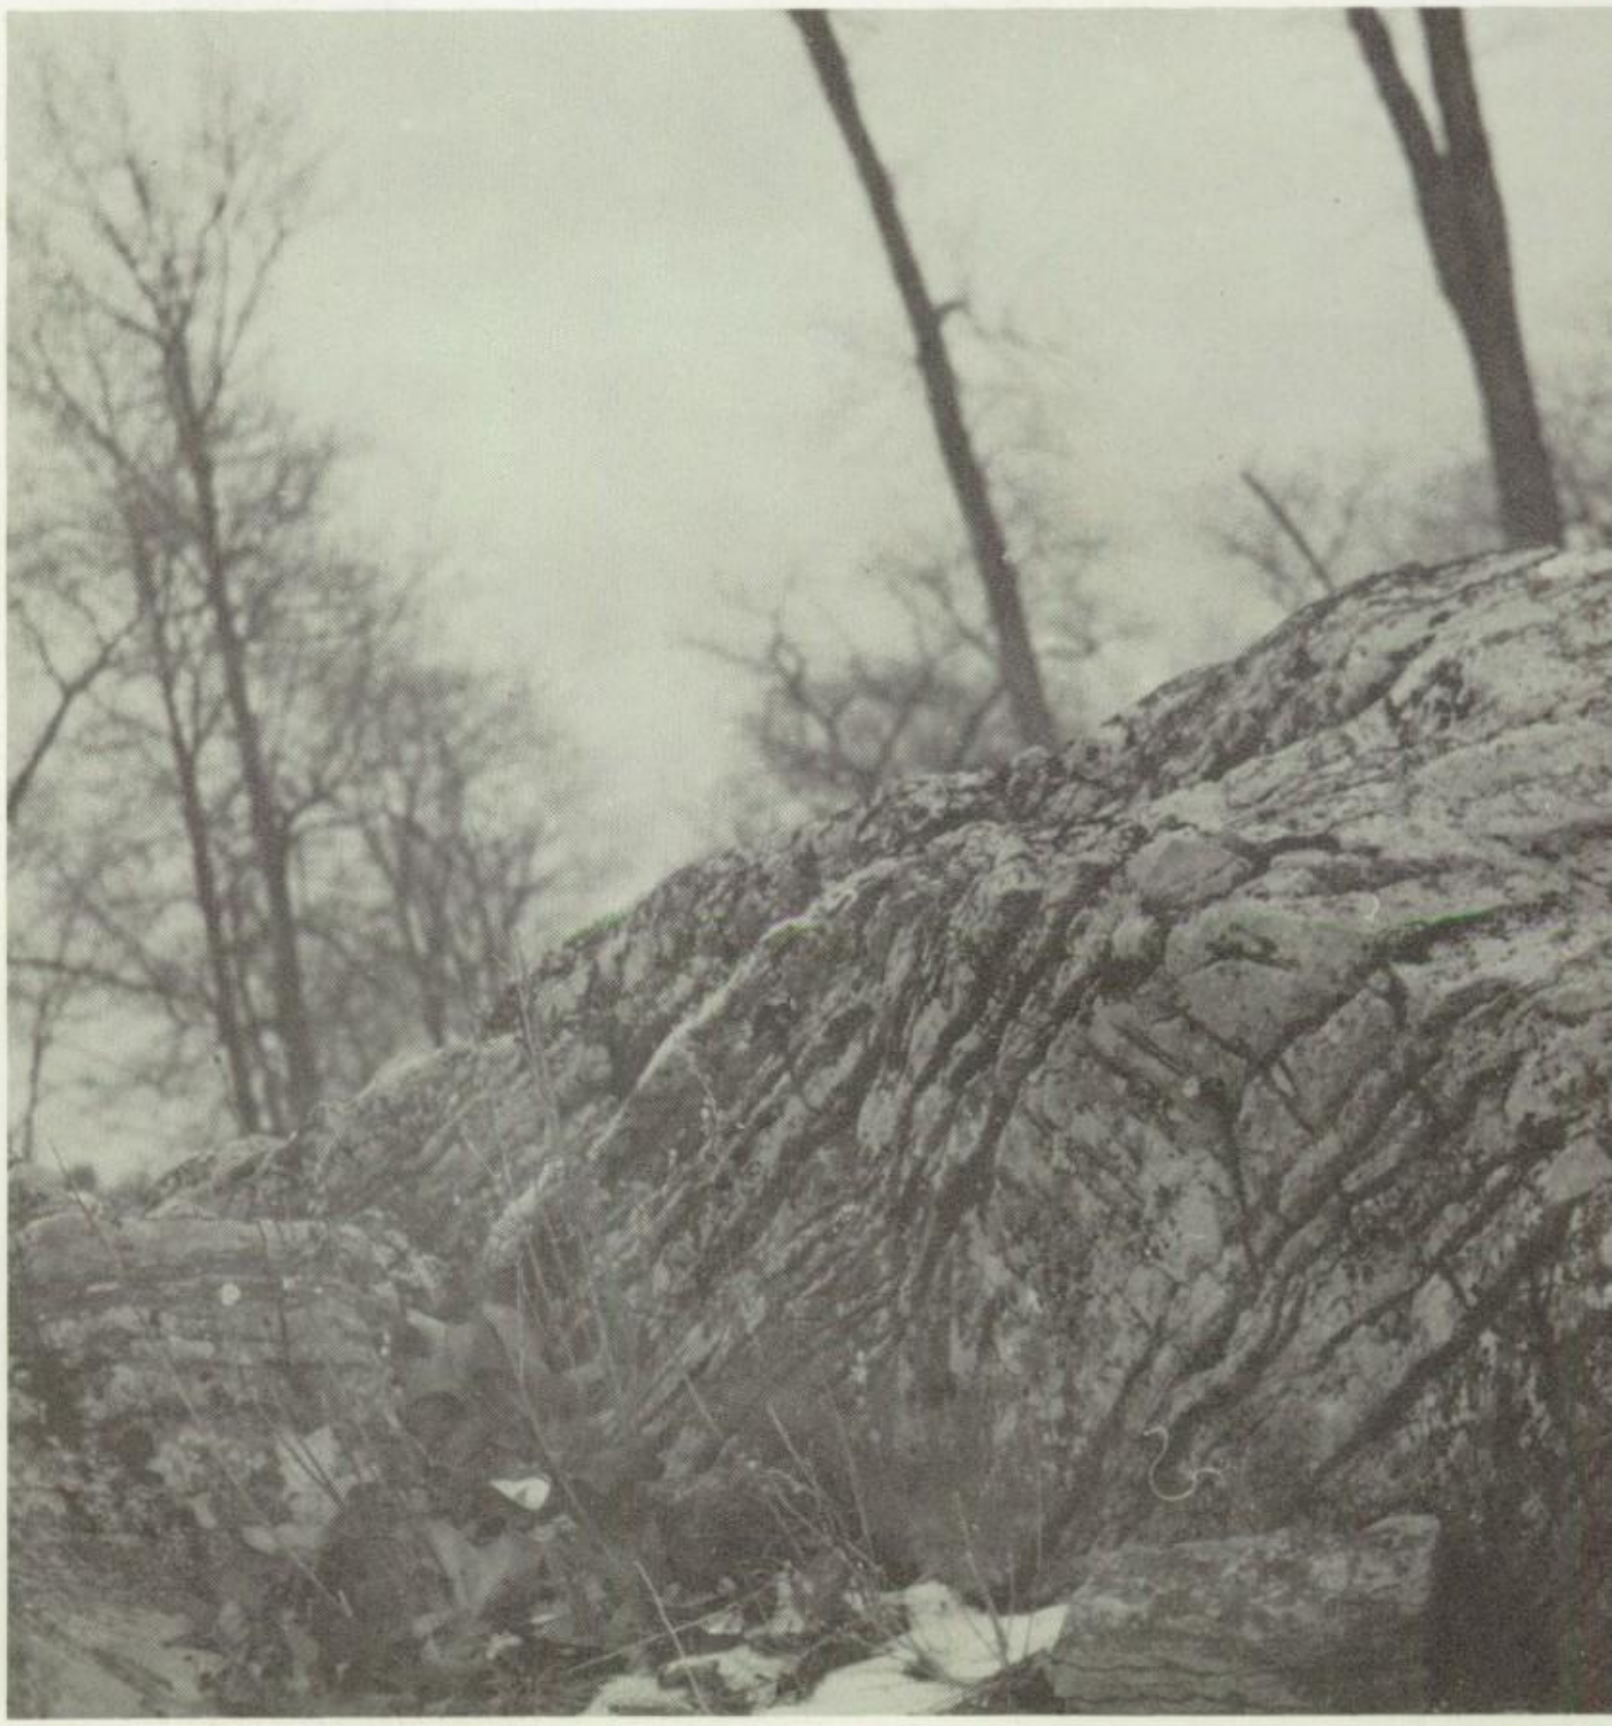
For understanding friends

Whose warm magnetic love ignites my own;

I cherish the development of warm friendships and the tenderness of sympathetic understanding—it helps me conquer. "My son, there's no power like love."

And for thyself, Eternal Rock,
Inhabiting my mortal frame;

I experience new reality in surrendering completely to His power; I find stability in His presence. "My son, to live is Christ!"



For this is life in Thee.
